

Election at End of Collision Course?

Tories, Grits Dug In on Flag Front

By KEN KELLY
OTTAWA (CP)—Are Liberals and Conservatives headed for a collision on the flag issue which only a general election can solve?

The answer seems to be yes in the light of statements from both groups that they are dug in unalterably in their respective stands on the issue.

The flag debate is scheduled by the government to resume

in the Commons soon, possibly next week.

Prime Minister Pearson said Friday the government will not budge on this intention.

"The flag is part of our sessional program for the first part of the session and we want to finish it," he told a reporter.

The Conservatives want the debate postponed until after a summer recess. They have advised the government that debate on the flag will take many more weeks.

So far the government's proposed flag of three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each side has been debated on six days. There have been 16 Liberal speakers, 20 Conservative, three New Democrat, four Social Credit and three Creditiste.

Unless one side gives way, debate could be prolonged indefinitely.

Or the government could dissolve Parliament for a fall election on the basis that Parliament refuses to enact into law the proposed flag.

Several Conservatives tried more than a week ago to convince the government and their colleagues to accept the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Canadian Red Ensign as the banner marking Canada's Commonwealth connection.

The government has proposed the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Union Jack as denoting Canada's Commonwealth association.

The Conservative compromise effort failed to win wide enough support among those who insist the Canadian flag must retain as one element of it the Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner.

Jury's Verdict:

Hospital Staff Negligent

By MIKE GADSBY

A coroner's jury Friday found negligence "on the part of an employee or employees unknown of Glengarry Private Hospital, contributing to the death of Mrs. Jessie Charlton Little."

The verdict came on the heels of a last-minute statement by George Gregory, counsel for Mrs. C. M. MacLeod, daughter of the deceased, that Mrs. MacLeod would be content if the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The inquest into Mrs. Little's death was convened under coroner Edmond J. de St. Jorre on a Supreme Court order after Mrs. Little, a patient at Glengarry private hospital, died Feb. 28, a day after admission to St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured and dislocated left arm.

Last witness to be called in the four-day inquest was Dr. Michael Ross, who was called in as an expert witness.

HEARD EVIDENCE
David Hummel, counsel for Glengarry hospital, asked Dr. Ross if he had heard Dr. J. W. E. Hunt's evidence that Mrs. Little had very limited movement of her arms and legs. (Dr. Hunt was Mrs. Little's physician.)

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Would you agree that his evidence on her ability to cause this injury to herself was based on his knowledge of her movement capability?

Dr. Ross: Yes.
OPINION ON INJURY
Mr. Hummel: Did you hear other evidence that Mrs. Little could pull herself up, sit up and had considerable movement of her legs and arms?

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Assuming it was true, what opinion would you have that she could do this damage (the broken arm) to herself?

Dr. Ross: I think it would be possible.
QUITE USUAL
Dr. Ross went on to say that it would be quite usual for a doctor to put off seeing Mrs. Little when her condition was as described.

He also stated that the private hospital shouldn't have taken

Capless Cabbie Jailed

OTTAWA (CP)—Paul Auger was sent to jail Friday because he wouldn't wear a cap. Auger, 23, is a cab driver. A city bylaw requires all drivers to wear caps on the job.

Last month he paid his third $5 fine for the offence and swore that he would go to jail next time before donning the cap in hot weather.

On Friday Magistrate L. A. Sherwood convicted him of a fourth offence and gave him the choice of a $12 fine or two days in jail.

Auger chose jail after failing in his main argument—that because he was six-foot-three, he couldn't comfortably wear a cap while driving and would have to find another job if forced to wear one.

Ottawa cab drivers have been campaigning against the bylaw.

Riot City Pleads For Help

BULLETIN

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—City officials declared a state of emergency and asked for state assistance early today as racial rioting involving at least 1,000 persons inflamed a 50-block area of upstate New York city.

Before dawn, city manager Porter Homer declared a state of emergency and called the office of Gov. Rockefeller to request assistance from state police. A contingent of 100 troopers were standing by in the city.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—A race riot sparked by the arrest of a Negro at a street dance flared out of control early today in the heart of this upstate New York city. Police said at least 1,000 Negroes and whites were involved.

At least 500 policemen were rushed to the scene of the rioting but the melee became so intense they withdrew from the center of it and established a perimeter defence to contain it.

Police said the situation was "definitely out of control and critical."

At least 50 persons were injured, including some police. REIN TO AREA

The arrest of the Negro for disorderly conduct triggered a major clash between Negroes and police. Word of the incident caused a number of whites to rush into the area and join in the street fighting.

The riotous disorders spread over a 50-block area and at the height of it at least a half dozen police cars were overturned. The personal automobile of Police Chief William Lombard was rolled over and burned. DOZEN AMBULANCES

At least a dozen ambulances were sent into the area where the violence erupted. A number of stores were wrecked and one witness said several liquor stores and pharmacies were "stripped to the walls."

A two-alarm fire was reported raging in the center of the Negro district where the rioting broke out. Police were not certain whether it was connected with the disorders.

Scene of the trouble was the Joseph Avenue area, a predominantly Negro neighborhood. There are approximately 25,000 Negroes among the more than 318,000 residents of this northwestern New York city situated near Lake Ontario.

Chief Justice Dies at 68 After Relapse

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Court of Appeal died Friday night at his home in Vancouver after a sudden relapse in a prolonged illness. The death of the prominent jurist came almost a year to the day after an historic judgment that rocked the province. On July 29, 1963, Chief Justice Lett declared unconstitutional the B.C. government's expropriation of the B.C. Electric power, gas and transportation utility.

He would have celebrated his 69th birthday next Saturday.

FUNERAL DATE LATER
Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Premier Bennett, who was on Salt Spring Island when informed of his death, said he was "shocked and saddened."

"This is very sad news," said Attorney-General Bonner. "I feel it very much personally."

SUFFER GREAT LOSS
"The people of this province and of Canada suffer a great loss at his death," Premier Bennett said. "In his remarkable career may be seen the accomplishments, it seems, of several lifetimes."

Mr. Bennett pointed to his distinguished career as student leader and later as chancellor of UBC, "as a gallant officer and senior commander in two world wars and a leading member of the legal profession and more recently as chief justice of this province."

VALUED FRIEND
He said Chief Justice Lett would be missed "perhaps more particularly as a valued friend and advisor to countless people in Canada in all walks of life."

"Mrs. Bennett joins me in extending deepest sympathies to Mrs. Lett and the family at this time."

PERSONAL LOSS
Mr. Bonner said he felt the chief justice's death very much personally "because I enjoyed an acquaintanceship with him over the past 20 years from undergraduate days at UBC, in alumni activity and in the militia, in private practice but more particularly during the

$30,000 Toronto Robbery

Police Post Reward For Bank Bandit As Pursuer Killed

TORONTO (CP)—Police Chief James Mackay authorized a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the person responsible for the shooting death of Jack Blanc, 56, of Toronto, during an armed robbery of a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in suburban Downsview Friday afternoon.

Police are still seeking the lone bandit who removed about $30,000 from the bank's vault and cash drawers.

Inspector William Perry said the suspect fled from the bank, pursued by an accountant carrying the bank's revolver. Mr. Blanc, standing outside the bank, took the revolver from the accountant and began chasing the bandit, he said.

HIT CRUISER

In the meantime, Inspector Perry said, a police car appeared on the scene driven by Const. Donald Jackson. The holdup man fired several shots at the police cruiser with what appeared to be a rifle.

Some of the shots shattered the windshield, spraying the officer about the eyes, face and neck with broken glass. Const. Jackson's condition was reported to be good.

CONTINUED CHASE

Inspector Perry said Mr. Blanc, a skidding instructor for the Young Men's Hebrew Association, continued pursuing the bandit, until the robber wheeled and fired directly at him, killing him instantly. The bandit then made his getaway in a stolen, cream-colored automobile that was found later a short distance from the scene.

MANAGER'S OFFICE

The gunman had entered the bank about 5 p.m., one hour before closing, walked past about 25 customers and directly into the manager's office. The manager was talking to a customer at the time.

The bandit fired two shots over the manager's head and

Johnson Answers de Gaulle

U.S. Won't 'Ratify Terror'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Friday clashed with French President de Gaulle, declaring the United States would not agree to any conference on Southeast Asia called "to ratify terror."

The president also took sharp issue with de Gaulle's statement, made in Paris Thursday, that the United States was trying to dominate Europe. (See Page 3.)

Johnson, at a news conference in the state department auditorium, aimed at de Gaulle at the outset with statements about U.S. policy toward southeast Asia and Europe.

De Gaulle Thursday proposed that a conference be called to discuss the proposed neutrality of Viet Nam, Laos, and Cambodia (all part of the old French Indochina), and that the four major powers involved—America, Russia, Communist China and France—get out of the area.

The United States also has

rejected de Gaulle's plan when he has proposed it in the past. Johnson declared that it is true there is danger and provocation from North Viet Nam, "and such provocation could force a response, but it is also true that the United States seeks no wider war."

"Other friends," he went on, "suggest that this problem must be moved to a conference table and, indeed, if others would keep the solemn agreements already signed at a conference table, there would be no problem in South Viet Nam."

This was a reference to the various Geneva agreements which set up the partition of Viet Nam, after the Indochinese war which ended in 1954, and established the neutrality and independence of Laos.

The president added: "We do not believe in a conference called to ratify terror, so our policy is unchanged. For 10 years, and in three different administrations, the United States has been committed to the freedom and independence of South Viet Nam, helping others to help themselves."

"In those 10 years we have taken whatever actions were necessary. We shall stick to that policy."

New Series to Explore LBJ's Personality

A distinguished Washington correspondent who has known Lyndon Johnson well for 30 years gives the intimate story of the U.S. president in a series of Colson articles starting Sunday.

William B. White, Pulitzer Prize winner and widely syndicated columnist, tells of the many facets of Johnson's personality, and of his political shrewdness, in The Professional, a 16-part book condensation.

Avoid Race Tensions —Johnson, Goldwater

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater conferred alone for 16 minutes Friday and agreed that "racial tensions should be avoided" in the campaign ahead. However, before the meeting, Johnson said he had no plans to make a pact to avoid civil rights as an issue.

Chief Justice Dies at 68

Last 12 years when Sherwood Lett was university chancellor at UBC and more latterly chief justice in our courts.

"Both my wife and I are well acquainted with the family and we extend our deepest sympathy at this time."

"His career was a model which young people in this province should study and on which they could well pattern their own lives. His death will leave a sad gap among the province's leaders for many years to come."

Chief Justice Lett suffered a heart attack last February at the opening of the legislature and has never been well enough since to return to the bench.

He was decorated in two world wars and severely wounded at Dieppe in 1942. A Rhodes scholar, he became chancellor of UBC in 1951 and held the position for six years. In 1954 he was appointed chief of the Canadian delegation on the International Supervisory Commission of the cease-fire in Indo-China.

He was named chief justice of the B.C. Supreme court in 1955 and moved in June, 1963, to the head of the appeal court with the title of chief justice of B.C.

BORN IN ONTARIO
Born in Ingersoll, Ont., Chief Justice Lett left McGill University to enlist with the Irish Fusiliers of Canada at the outbreak of the First World War and went overseas in 1915.

In France from 1916 to 1919, he won the Military Cross, an Amiens in 1918 and completed an arts degree from UBC while he was overseas, graduating in the university's first class in 1916.

LAWYER IN 1922
After his scholarship to Oxford he was called to the bar of B.C. in 1922 and joined a Vancouver law firm in 1925.

In 1940 he went overseas and as a brigadier led the 4th Infantry Brigade in the Dieppe raid of 1942. He was awarded the DSO. Following convalescence and a period as deputy chief of staff at Ottawa he returned to Europe and was wounded again at Caen in July 1944 and mentioned in dispatches in 1945.

Chief Justice Lett is survived by his widow Evelyn and two daughters.

Island Accountants Pass Examinations

Twenty-six Island students obtained standing in a recent economics examination of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.

Highest marks in the province in the examination were obtained by Patrick Alan Aldous, 4590 Summer Place. He is son of B.C. Ferry Authority general manager, Monty Aldous, and is a student with the firm of L-may, Boiston, Dunn and Co. of Victoria.

Of the 132 successful candidates who obtained standing in the examination, the following are from Victoria:

Allan G. Fitzgerald, Dave Flaig, Roderick N. Genier, R. J. Hale, Richard Lewis, Warren Lowe, John H. Mace, Alfred F. May, David L. Peters, Richard

M. Scherr, W. M. Trenholme, John C. Worthing.

Successful Vancouver Island students are Robert Barry Ballam of Port Alberni, Clive Hadfield, Michael F. Hurn, V. W. Hutchins, James S. Moffat, Eric J. Lamb and D. G. Van Shaik, Nanaimo.

Seven Victoria students passed the 1964 primary accounting and auditing examination of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. They are:

R. M. Dennstedt, Dave Flaig, Alfred P. May, P. Q. Gillan, David L. D. Peters, William D. Wong and John C. Worthing.

Successful Vancouver Island students are:

Clive Hadfield and Vernon W. Hutchins, Nanaimo; N. J. Nicholson, Port Alberni; V. Little, Duncan.

'Establishment' Original Cast To Play Here

The Establishment, Britain's famed satirists, will start a Canadian tour in Victoria Sept. 21, at the Royal Theatre.

The Establishment, which has appeared on CBC's Quest and the Ed Sullivan Show, started at a night club of that name in London and won renown by aiming its barbs at the ruling order in Britain.

Nothing is safe—the church, royalty, international affairs and politics.

Heading the cast are John Bird, Jeremy Gidd and Carol

Simpson. Producer is Peter Cook, who owns the London club with Nicholas Luad.

The group is the first original cast group from London to visit Canada. Other shows send out road companies.

Last year the group played in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, where Mayor Charles Whitton threatened to chase them out of town.

After the Victoria appearance they go to Vancouver and then 12 other Canadian cities before returning home.

shouted: "I want all the money you have in the bank."

The bandit then walked into the main lobby of the bank, jumped up on a counter and started waving his gun at the customers and the bank staff of 10.

He leaped down behind the counter and scooped up money from cash drawers, stuffing it into two broadcloth bags. Then he walked from the building, followed by the manager and Mr. Blanc.

FIRE AT PURSUERS

After shooting at Mr. Blanc, the gunman picked up his bags and continued walking down the street. In the space of about 200 feet, he turned and fired five or six times at persons following him, missing them all.

The shot fired at the bandit by Mr. Blanc apparently missed by about one foot.

John Kee, a teller at the bank, said the bandit handed the bags to an accountant and told him to fill them with money. He also ordered the manager to open the vault, Mr. Kee said.

"I'm tired of getting just what's in the till," Mr. Kee quoted the gunman as saying. As the bandit left the bank, Mr. Blanc, who was accompanied by his wife, turned to the accountant as he was getting the bank's revolver out and said: "Give that gun to me, I'm a crack shot."

the patient to a regular hospital without a doctor's permission unless there was an obvious dire emergency.

Under questioning by Mr. Hummel, Dr. Ross said that Mrs. Little could have suffered a broken arm without feeling any pain. He said that although such a situation would be unusual it would not be unique.

Mr. Hummel: Have you heard evidence that indicates to you that any member of the hospital staff did anything wrong?

Dr. Ross: No, I haven't.

In cross-examination, Mr. Gregory suggested that Mrs. Little, who was not able to communicate with those around her, was suffering pain which was not diagnosed.

Dr. Ross answered that in the lack of any symptoms or evidence of pain, it was apparent that she had not been suffering. The six-man jury deliberated about 40 minutes before bringing in its verdict.

Collision Course

baker put the seal on the party's stand in a Wednesday television speech.

"To put it frankly, the stand of the government is that Parliament must either do or what the government wants it to do or an election will be called. . . .

"I think today Canadians as a whole, in the interests of unity and amity, would be prepared to compromise to bring about a flag based on the ensign as it is, with the fleur-de-lis or whatever French-Canada would like to have to show the historical past and the contribution of the French to Canada on the fly."

Neither Liberals nor Conservatives are said to be unanimously in favor of the positions of their party. But they seem able to do little except try to persuade each other to modify their positions and hope the flag debate will run out of speakers.

Members in both parties say they are prepared to fight regardless of whether an election — as a final solution — is involved.

"I wouldn't like to think what would happen," says Mr. Pearson on the question of the Conservatives being unilaterally determined not to give way.

Would the government agree to suspend the flag debate until after a recess under certain conditions?

"Oh, no," Mr. Pearson said. "It's not a question of conditions."

Conquerors Of Everest Try Rainier

LONGMIRE (AP) — Tenzing and three of the five Americans who reached the summit of Mt. Everest began the 14,410-foot ascent of Mt. Rainier Thursday.

Tenzing of India and Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand were the first men to scale Everest, the world's highest mountain.

Making the climb with Tenzing are Jim Whittaker of Redmond, first American to scale Everest, and two of his companions in that expedition, Luther Jerstad of Gig Harbor, and Dr. Tom Hornbein of the University of Washington.

Tenzing's wife, Dakhu, 28, accompanied the party on the first leg of the climb.

Fifty-two Victoria bridge players tested themselves against the best players in the country Friday evening at the Elks hall. The event was the American Contract Bridge League continental-wide charity game in conjunction with the national championships held in Canada for the first time.

The ACBL's summer national tournament opened in Toronto with the charity game, and people across the continent were able to play the same hands at the same time as the experts.

The Toronto hands had been pre-dealt and were mailed to the clubs in sealed packages which were opened just before the game, then duplicated. Special master-point awards were given for the event. Results will be in Sunday's Col- onist.

'Goof Balls' Indicate Problem But It's Not Ice-Chomping

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My step-daughter introduced her mother to amphetamine-based "goof balls." From a nice person, my wife has become an irritable, whining nag. The supply is from under the counter, not medically supervised.

She suffers severe headaches and has at all times a traveling pain from hair to soles. These things hurt her, not me, but now she has acquired the habit of chomping crushed ice, from early to late. This will take me to the looney bin with her.

Is this insane desire to chomp ice a side effect of goof balls?—MR. X.X.X.

You have a problem. Your wife has one. Your stepdaughter does, too.

There's nothing about the amphetamine drugs (goof balls) that intrinsically leads to ice-chomping. I've had quite a few inquiries from people who got into the habit of chewing ice cubes or chips, and there's nothing basically harmful about it.

There's nothing necessarily wrong, either, with saying "hrrumph," or scratching your ear, or indulging any other odd nervous habits.

But in your case, I would find out why your wife adopted the amphetamine habit, and how your daughter happened to know so much about goof balls.

There's some sort of emotional problem involved here.

The amphetamine drugs, so casually overused by too many people, cause irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness. The chewing of cracked ice, in this case, could be nothing more than a handy outlet for the excess nervous tensions that build up—and there are other really harmful outlets that might have developed instead. So perhaps you are, to that extent, lucky.

CHECK DOCTOR

But consult your physician and tell him exactly what you have written to me.

The problem here isn't chomping ice. It is why your wife (and her daughter) started taking goof balls. You have in your family a couple of females who are in trouble, and maybe you can open some doors and let some professional of another field find a way to help them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a woman of 69 hope to recover from osteoporosis of the lower spine? I'm in much pain—F.B.S.

Complete recovery cannot be promised, but relief from pain is possible. Osteoporosis is a weakening of the bones from loss of calcium.

Physical activity is necessary. With it, there is no way a doctor can retard or reverse this loss of calcium. Bones need exercise to stay strong.

Hormones are usually given to help the deficiency. They also help maintain bone strength. Another essential is a diet high in protein, calcium and Vitamin C.

NOTE TO MRS. J.W.W.

Yes, by all means go to your physician to find out why you do not become pregnant.

Better yet, have your husband go first. Either the husband or the wife may have some fault which can be corrected, and as it is much simpler to test the man, it is more economical to examine him first.

Time Bomb Blasts Johannesburg Depot

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—A time bomb planted in a suitcase blew up during rush hour in the main railway station in this South African city Friday, injuring 25 persons, three of them children.

Most of the injured were burned, some of them seriously. No arrests had been made late Friday night.

Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster said the suitcase was placed beside an elderly woman by a young white man. The woman was injured seriously.

'COLD-BLOODED'
The minister called the bombing "nothing less than a cold-blooded attempt at the murder of innocent passers-by."

The explosion occurred at 4:30 p.m. as hundreds of people poured into the station to catch trains for home after work.

TELEPHONE CALL

The Johannesburg Afrikaans-language morning newspaper Die Transvaler said it received a telephone call a few minutes before the explosion from a man who said there was a bomb in the station.

The paper quoted the caller as saying:

"This is the African resistance movement. There is a bomb in the main hall of the Johannesburg Station. If somebody touches it, it will explode. It is scheduled to explode at 4:33. Warn the station."

POLICE TOLD

The call was reported to have come through to the newspaper at 4:27 p.m. After the man hung up, the editor called rail police at the station.

The main station concourse was a mass of splintered glass from store windows shattered by the blast.

Peace Plan

De Gaulle Unmoved By Hostility

PARIS (UPI)—President de Gaulle is undismayed by Washington's hostile reaction to his "peace and neutralization" plan for Southeast Asia, French government sources said Friday.

They said he remains determined to push his three-point program calling for a new Geneva conference, a non-interference pledge by the United States, Russia, Red China and France and a massive foreign economic and technical aid plan for the former Indochina states.

The sources said de Gaulle still is convinced that a negotiated settlement and neutralization are the only possible solutions for the fighting in Viet Nam, short of "escalation" up to the point of risking a world war.

Health Food Treatment 'Misconduct'

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Leo V. Roy of Toronto has been found guilty by the council of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons of misconduct and his name ordered stricken from the college's record.

Dr. Roy was said to have treated a cancer patient with health foods, alleged anti-cancer serum and an electric machine.

A charge of professional misconduct was originally made against him.

Singapore Urges Racial Peace

SINGAPORE (AP)—Officials of this strategic Malaysian city state pressed a campaign Friday for peace between Singapore Chinese and Malays, antagonists in four days of racial riots that have left 19 dead and 451 injured.

Bloodshed appeared to ebb even as Deputy Premier Toh Chin Chye and Culture Minister S. Rajaratnam launched the campaign with an appeal in the main Chinese section:

"Stop this madness while there is still time."

U.S. Customs Nabs Raiders

MIAMI (UPI)—U.S. customs agents boarded a heavily-armed motor launch in the Florida Keys Thursday and took five men into custody in what was apparently the second attempt in three days to raid Cuba.

The five men, four Cubans and an American, were held for questioning, but customs officials said no charges had been filed.

Harlem Quiet

Race Protest Today Despite Police Ban

NEW YORK (AP)—A police ban was issued Friday night against an anti-police demonstration planned for today by the militant Harlem defence council. Within minutes, the council leader said the mass demonstration would go on as planned.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy issued the order forbidding the demonstration and council leader William Epton rejected it.

POLICE READY

Meanwhile, the police department braced itself for another possible weekend of violence. More than 100 steel-helmeted police on foot and horseback guarded civil rights demonstrators who converged on police headquarters Friday night.

A similar demonstration by members of the Congress of Racial Equality Thursday night had brought taunts and the tossing of eggs, tin cans and other debris by some 1,500 white teenagers.

FEAR VIOLENCE

Epton complained that Murphy's ban was an infringement on the constitutional rights of those hoping to attend the meeting.

Police fear that violence would flare anew in Harlem if the meeting were held.

Both Harlem and a Negro section of Brooklyn have remained quiet the last two nights, after five nights of rioting, looting and sacking of stores in the predominantly Negro communities.

A spokesman for the Harlem defence council said the group planned to set up a mock court to "try" a white police lieutenant, Thomas Gilligan, who shot to death a 15-year-old Negro boy last week.

The shooting touched off the bloody riots. The policeman said he shot in self-defence when the youth came at him with a knife.

Soldier Executed

BUDAPEST (AP)—A Hungarian soldier has been executed for killing a policeman with a sub-machine gun, the Communist party newspaper Nepszabadsag said Friday. It reported the soldier, Ferenc Bublik, 21, left his unit without permission and shot a policeman who asked for his leave papers.

Compensation

'Sinners' Lose Pensions

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Workmen's Compensation Act, which considers to be "living in sin," Board chairman J. Edwin Eades made the statement here Thursday while under cross-examination during the Royal Commission inquiry into the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Commission counsel Gordon Rae was trying to determine the board's right or qualification to sit in moral judgment.

"If a widow is living—as the clerk would say—in sin, we have cancelled the pension," Mr. Eades said. "Whenever this has been done the widow married subsequently."

Florida Restaurant Hit by Fire Bombs

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI)—A restaurant caught in a cross-fire between segregationists and integrationists was hit by three Molotov cocktails Friday and police picked up two white men for questioning.

Fire damage to the restaurant, part of the Monson Motor Lodge, was limited to the carpeting and furnishing. There were no injuries.

Police said the two whites taken into custody, Willard Stuart Williamson and Robert Edward Leonard, were being held under $3,500 bond on charges of displaying an improper auto licence tag and possession of obscene literature.

The arrests came about two and one-half hours after three bottles filled with flammable liquid and equipped with flaming wicks, were hurled through a window.

The Monson restaurant, operated by James Brock, a segregationist, had been the target of repeated integration demonstrations prior to passage of the Civil Rights law. After the legislation was enacted Brock agreed to abide by the new law, but soon found his motel picketed by white segregationists.

House Approves Student Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's student loan legislation won approval in the Commons Friday in the eighth day of debate on the bill. It goes to the Senate Monday.

It went through third and final reading 137 to 14 after a formal vote was forced by the Creditist group.

Normally, third reading is a formality that takes only a minute. But it required 45 minutes Friday because of three speeches and the roll-call voting procedure.

The bill lets the government guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 a year for five years (for each needy university-level student. Ottawa will pay the interest charges while the student remains at school and for six months after. Then the student starts paying off the loan, taking between five and 10 years. Gilles Giguere (Creditist—Lapointe) and Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette—l'Assomption—Montcalm) repeated charges that the bill invades provincial education rights.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) also threw in a last-minute speech, claiming the legislation is a weak excuse for the Liberal election promise of 10,000 university scholarships a year.

Weather . . . or Not?

GREATER VICTORIANS and Englishmen have much in common. To some degree they might even be said to be interchangeable. Take the weather for instance. Only among residents of the Saanich peninsula and inhabitants of the lower and larger portion of the major British Isle does this subject assume such importance that it is regarded as the main topic of conversation daily, almost hourly, the year round.

Certainly during this summer (sic) at least, Victorians can be said to be every bit as anxious to talk about the vagaries of wind, rain and sunshine as frequently, as despondently, as passionately and with as much futility as their comrades-under-bumbershoots in the United Kingdom.

Yet in all fairness (to whom we are not quite sure) it must be admitted that Victorians have far to go to equal England's spoken or written word on the subject.

Before attempting to challenge the Englishman's title of world champion weather-talker, Victorians should be made aware of the fact that England's climate has been the subject of continual discussion and criticism (both foreign and local) for well over 2,000 years.

The first recorded words on the matter were those of Tacitus who summed the whole thing up with this remark: "The climate is objectionable." Despite his friends' conclusion that Tacitus had then said all that was necessary, the intervening 20 centuries between then and now have been filled with more of the same observations.

Nor can it be forgotten that the earliest daily weather record in Europe was kept by an Englishman between 1337 and 1344, and that modern records have been kept in London ever since the 17th century.

However, in spite of all this, one little ray of sunshine (metaphorically speaking) has found its way through the fog bank. Professor Gordon Manley, one of Britain's leading weather experts, finds that England's climate is its "greatest permanent asset."

It makes possible, he says, growth of the widest variety of crops and, with its remarkably effective local variations, development of many breeds of animals. It is, he claims, easy to live in, imposing no excessive strains, nervous or otherwise.

All of which may provide us Victorians with another angle to discuss when we indulge in our everyday favorite topic of conversation.

Only a Token

THE CANADIAN Highway Safety Council at its annual conference this year called for all motor vehicles to be subjected to inspection by competent examiners at least once a year. The Canadian Automobile Association at its annual meeting proposed the mandatory inspection of cars every six months. Both of these organizations concerned with cutting down the dreadful toll of death and damage on the roads would appear to be a long way from seeing their object achieved in British Columbia.

There are, granted, two schools of thought on the need for vehicle testing.

One is that only a small fraction of accidents can definitely be attributed to mechanical failure or deficiency, and that regular inspection and fully enforced safety standards are too expensive and troublesome by this criterion. Some holders of such a view argue also that drivers of defective vehicles are all the more careful because of the added hazards they know they have travelling with them.

The other side is that the figures on accident causes and contributing factors probably are not truly representative of the facts, the evidence and the witnesses of mechanical let-down so often being demolished and the tendency being to look more for human fault. The proportion of unsafe vehicles found where and when compulsory tests are conducted lends credence to this opinion. And it is a matter of ready observation that as road traffic becomes denser and highway speeds faster, the driver of a defective car or truck has two choices, both dangerous. He can impede others, or he can go along with the stream with his fingers crossed.

British Columbia has at last given some recognition to the cries of the traffic safety authorities in this respect. Late in the summer a province-wide vehicle testing program is to be inaugurated.

But a less effective check could hardly be devised, for submission to examination will be voluntary. The inspection obviously will appeal most to those who take pride in the condition of their automobiles, least and very little to those who know or suspect their cars to be in need of repair and do nothing about it for lack of money or lack of care or conscience.

The B.C. system in other words will be only a small token, apart from its supposed "educational" worth, and even the exemplary aspect will be devalued if the results of voluntary testing, as seems likely in these circumstances, purport to show that the great majority of vehicles are in good condition.

The hope of the safety groups must be that this will become so obvious to the provincial government as the program proceeds that a start on mandatory examination will soon follow.

Dog Daze

IN THESE DAYS when human beings all over the world seem to be experiencing the utmost difficulty in communicating with each other it is heartening to learn that whales, at least, are still talking things out among themselves.

Not so pleasing, however, is the news that Dr. Ross Speck of the Philadelphia Psychiatric Centre has recently discovered that dogs and cats outwardly reflect the emotional tensions of their human owners. After a year's concentrated study of the subject, Dr. Speck puts it this way: "If your dog has a nervous twitch go and see a psychiatrist—chances are that you are neurotic."

The implications of the good doctor's findings are as frightening as they are legion.

Does it mean that every time the family pet growls or "chases cats" in his sleep that father should he himself off to nearest psychiatrist's couch? Does it mean that if a friend's dog barks at you his owner hates you?

If your dog chases the postman should the incident be accepted as a manifestation of your subconscious abhorrence of governmental authority? That you are a separatist or anarchist at heart?

Personally we prefer to believe that dogs act like dogs—even if people act like people.

"Let's gang up and get rid of the fuzz."

The New Commonwealth

Nothing to Lose, Much to Gain

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

TWO very wise remarks have been made by Prime Minister Menzies of Australia since the conclusion of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in London.

One was to the effect that the conference could be a starting point for better relations between the white and colored races of the world; the other that the conference had not guaranteed the future of the Commonwealth but only its continuation.

For some time Sir Robert has been the senior prime minister in the Commonwealth; he has an excellent record of accomplishments and his views are always put forward with clarity and vigor; they receive and merit close attention.

It does seem that the conference has been successful and that it may well prove to have been significant in the development of the new Commonwealth.

Much of the credit for the success must go to the leaders from the 14 member-nations which have gained their independence since the Second World War. They are determined that the Commonwealth shall not break up and obviously they place a high value on membership in this multi-racial and world-wide club.

And there seems to have been some very frank talk on all sides—particularly on the question of Southern Rhodesia. This was the most difficult subject before the conference and the one most likely to bring failure.

As is well-known Southern Rhodesia has had a large measure of self-government for several decades; at many earlier prime ministers' conferences it was represented; then a few years ago the British set up a Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland which included Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland; at the conference in 1962 this federation was represented by its second and last prime minister—Sir Roy Welensky—although it did not have complete independence.

Northern Rhodesia has comparatively few whites and Nyasaland only a handful and these two parts of the federation insisted on independence—which meant non-white governments. Britain eventually agreed so the federation was broken up; Nyasaland is already free under the name of Malawi and Northern Rhodesia becomes a new nation in October; like Malawi it will join the Commonwealth.

But in Southern Rhodesia there are over 200,000 whites; government has been in their hands throughout and they have been largely responsible for the development of the country.

If the natives are now given the vote on an equal basis they will certainly take over the government in due course; no one knows to what extent the white citizens will suffer and while they form a minority it is a powerful one.

In the background there is always the possibility that the present government of Southern Rhodesia will decide to lead the country into South Africa which would mean adopting a policy of apartheid. The British government has tried very hard to work out a settlement and has done so in the face of much unfair criticism in the United Nations. The former Canadian government realized this and did everything it could to support Britain.

The decision made by the prime ministers on this question seems to have been that the British are to be allowed to decide when Southern Rhodesia will be given its independence but that when it does become free the majority of the people must govern; this of course means a non-white government.

To dissuade the present white government from declaring independence in the meantime it was agreed that should they do so Southern Rhodesia could not become a member of the Commonwealth.

Other important decisions were reached as well. One was that a permanent Commonwealth secretariat should be set up. This was not suggested by the British or Canadians but by the delegates from the new member-nations. Fortunately the old members agreed. This is a step forward and it should greatly strengthen the organization.

I hope there will be no more talk in Canada of the Commonwealth falling apart. It is now perfectly obvious that the new nations believe in it and wish to see it strengthened. They have not made threats or impossible demands and have shown an ability to understand the problems faced by Britain in freeing her remaining colonies.

For Canada membership in the new Commonwealth is invaluable. In no other organization to which we belong do we have the seniority which is ours in the Commonwealth. Furthermore no other gives us such close contacts on a world-wide basis. Without this membership we would hold a much less important place among the nations and certainly would be in more danger of domination by our friendly neighbor to the south.

We have nothing to lose and a great deal to gain by taking part in all Commonwealth activities and in giving leadership whenever we are in a position to do so.

India's Dispiriting Weeks

Mixed Blessing of the Monsoon

By CYRIL DUNN from New Delhi

INDIANS respond with peculiar joy to the coming of the monsoon. They predict the first rainfall with repeated inaccuracy and mounting assurance. And when finally it comes hissing into the hot dry ground, they stand staring at it with rapture or walk through the downpour, blissfully saturated.

Strangers in India are naturally caught up by this general excitement. But their expectations are different and are quickly disappointed. To them it seems likely that the fresh cool rain will end the brutal heat of May and June, when the air is still and smells of smouldering rope and the birds go about with horrid gawping beaks because otherwise they cannot breathe.

Something beneficent does occur at first. Lovely white clouds begin sailing slowly in from the west, across the hot and colorless sky. New birds of promise, flying ahead of the monsoon, begin to make themselves heard, with a tuneful, liquid repertoire quite unlike the eddying shrieks and jibberings of the hot weather breeds. And with the first fall of rain so falls the temperature, down below the hundred line.

But then the deception makes itself felt. It begins to appear that Indians are happy about the monsoon because it means the crops will grow and life be made possible for another year, not because living will become tolerable straight away. Instead we are hot and cold together as in the worst of fevers. The rain strikes chill, but under a raincoat of gossamer plastic one feels as if trapped in a pressure cooker.

Even the primal joy of Indians at the renewal of life begins to sag as day after day the rain pours down on them, riding in towards their government offices on a million big wheels. In major and minor ways they are reminded that God is at once creator and destroyer.

Regions dying of drought are desolated overnight by huge floods. Little Hindus going down to the river to bathe are swept away. In the main streets melancholy pools spread evenly over drains blocked by months of dust storms. In this land of loose and leaky connections, almost daily some poor soul is electrocuted as he throws his damp cloth over a wire clothes-line.

And in the old walled city, in the wet silence after midnight, an old house sighs, and then, with a rattle, collapses, like a saturated cliff. One came down the other night—in a squalid lane close to the vast and beautiful Friday Mosque—and smothered a woman and nine children of two families under wet rubble. The children had splendid imperial Mogul names, like Akbar and Shah Jehan.

I joined a small sad group of "public men" who live in the quarter and had gathered in the house next door to discuss the tragedy. It was as old as the one that had fallen, was built round a courtyard with fretted Mogul arches. We sat on a white sheet with our shoes off.

They told me how at times like this the benevolent pattern of their socialist society is torn away, exposing a small and brutal capitalism. The houses of the quarter were in bad repair because their tenants paid small, controlled rents and the landlords wanted to be rid of them. The tenants could not make their houses good against the soaking rain because cement is now a commodity of the black market, selling there at twice the normal price.

To cheer them up a little, I said there were similarly greedy men in England and told them of rotting houses in Paddington. Oddly enough, they seemed, if anything, disappointed by this news. For it sometimes comforts a man to believe that his sufferings are unique.

A small disaster such as this, nourishes the general monsoon gloom, enervating and depressing. Through the hot weather and the rains that follow, the life of North India drags its feet. It becomes a factor in Indian politics, not always allowed for by Westerners less grievously burdened by their weather. Indeed, people say that if Nehru had died in December, when the days and nights are by Indian standards cold, the whole story of the transition might have been different. The Congress barons might then have put up a much fiercer fight for the succession and opened the gates of chaos. Instead, they were inhibited by the overwhelming heat and yawned in the face of their own ambition.

And now, in these dispiriting weeks of sweating and damp, Indians are beginning to worry about the enforced inactivity of their new leader.

Martin Luther King

Tactic of Shame

By SHAUN HERRON

THE cliché and the unexamined thought uttered with a prophetic flourish are not the postures exclusively of the religious magazine. But they are their habitual postures, and they trouble those of us who regard ourselves as serious and religious persons.

One of the historic and unexamined assumptions of religious oratory is that love transforms or transmutes hate. It is the basis of Christian pacifism. It is argued that Ghandi overcame the British by passive love (passivity in action if you like), but it is not allowed that the British overcome by Ghandi's passive action was first a humane nation, second a nation in which at the time only a minority of its people supported the British position in India, and finally, a nation which could no longer afford the cost of staying in India.

Negro non-violence in civil rights action is now being credited with a remarkable and continuing victory—the transmuting of hate into love by the action of passive love in face of violence. It is worth a look.

Years ago I toured the south and talked to Negroes and Negro pastors from South Carolina to Texas. At the time, Martin Luther King was unknown and had not yet been asked to undertake the direction of the civil rights bus boycott—which he accepted reluctantly—in Montgomery, Alabama.

But the interest of Negro pastors was turning towards the civil rights movement and the more articulate and intelligent of these men told me why.

The NAACP was raising the pressure in what was to become the civil rights movement we now know so much about. Negroes were beginning to listen to NAACP leadership. Negro pastors assured me that the Negroes were increasingly of a mind to abandon their Protestant churches for many reasons, among them the Negro pastors' posture of submissiveness increasing skepticism among the laity and the fact that "separate" organizations were obviously more concerned than were the churches for the status and dignity of the Negro in society. Green Pastures were no longer to be waited for across the Jordan.

If we don't get in, said the pastors, we lose the people and the Protestant Negro church will die.

It is interesting that the key leadership of the Southern Negro in the civil rights movement is in the hands of Negro pastors. In the north it is in the hands of astute laymen.

I have heard Martin Luther King explain to his people in Montgomery—he is no longer there, but in Atlanta—his doctrine of love, of non-violence. I am quite sure he believes it; i.e. that it transmutes directly confronted hatred.

I am also sure the great mass of his followers do not. If that is true, why do they follow him and maintain their passive-action stand?

First, I think Dr. King is aware that they do not believe it and indeed he does not really ask them to. He is not an illusionist and he puts no faith in unexamined attitudes. He would like his doctrine to be demonstrable. Failing this, he is aware that its pragmatic effect is sure enough to persuade his followers that tactically it is a good weapon.

He preaches love: he practices the tactics of revulsion. His followers sing "we love everybody" while rocks bounce off them and the rock throwers hate them more each day. But the nation's embarrassment grows.

Dr. King picked St. Augustine, Florida, with the longest and tactical skill of a great guerrilla commander. The place is worthless to the civil rights movement, a dull decadent ingrown little place that history created and passed by. But it is 400 years old and preparing to celebrate the fact and it is sunk in the middle of a relatively civilized area where wild excesses by St. Augustine's swamp-trash would stand out notably.

The swamp trash walked into Dr. King's trap with their clubs symbolically swinging. Their excesses were enough to make the front pages and the news-casts for weeks on end. The local police contributed to Dr. King's tactical victory by deputizing men of excess. An exasperated and harassed motel keeper put the finishing touches to a tactical masterpiece, the day he threw acid in his invaded swimming pool. And the beach chosen by the demonstrators was not a segregated beach. The men of excess had been trapped into going the limit and denied even the unsegregated ocean to the Negro.

Submissiveness before these excesses, the abuse of law offices, the slackness of the state governor, the brutal violence on the beach, produced neither love nor repentance in the whites of St. Augustine. But their exposure disgusted the nation.

The swamp trash also frightened those businessmen who remained relatively sane. They were handing over their town to violent hoods. Their cash registers also frightened them. The national reaction also frightened them. They agreed to talk and to obey the civil rights law. Men must eat.

Dr. King's real victory, however, was across the nation. Men were ashamed.

St. Augustine will not change much once the local Negroes lose outside support. But communities all over the South and in the border states and in the West, obeyed the new law rather than have their towns and cities "look like St. Augustine."

Jesus said: Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves. Dr. King might translate that: "Be ye non-violent and tactically sophisticated."

Italian Recession

Refugees from a 'Miracle'

By a Special OFNS Correspondent

THE first "refugees" from the Italian industrial "miracle" are trundling back to the impoverished South from a North which has let them down. This is the most striking manifestation to date of the Italian economic recession.

In the first five months of this year the rate of immigration into the "boom" city of Milan dropped by almost a half over the corresponding period last year—18,000 as against 34,000. This month 1,800 Sardinians alone have left the industrial triangle of Milan, Turin, Genoa and gone back to Sardinia to jobs as casual farm workers and shepherds.

These people were the last to benefit from the miracle—many of them arrived in the North during the last three years. And they are the first to suffer.

The Sardinians, who renounce their hard-won new skills learned in the factories of the North to pick up their old lives as shepherds, are not only going back a couple of centuries in civilization.

They are also being forced to renounce their dreams of twentieth-century life in a North where, in their imagination, factories grew like olive trees, and houses, television sets and motor scooters were part of the order of nature. It is the story of the film "Rocco and his Brothers" in reverse.

It is, of course, too early to speak of a large-scale flight back to the land, but after the general factory holidays which begin on August 15, certainly by the autumn, it may be possible to do so.

The first to leave are the late arrivals, who have not had time to establish themselves and summon their families. No longer after a couple of years of grinding work and saving can they send the triumphant postcard back to their waiting families in the South saying "Come."

A 19-year-old Milan laborer from Taranto, Gregorio Bacarelli, whose weekly hours have been reduced from 45 to 30, put the case of the single man: "In Milan I have to sleep in a shed in the building yard with five other laborers, cook my own meals, wash my own clothes. At home my mother does that. I hear that they need laborers: they are building more autostradas in the South. I am leaving Milan."

Mario Girelli, a bricklayer from Cosenza with a wife and two small children, working in Milan, said: "I came north in 1957. In seven years I have only had one month without work—that was last April. But if I have another month like that I shall have to go back."

Girelli rented two rooms and a bathroom for almost $180 a month, two-thirds of his wage. The one thing that makes him cling on is the future of his children.

A Secret to Be Shared

From The Montreal Star

FOR years a lot of people, daring enough to try it, have wondered ruefully, just what Calgary's Harry Hays uses to make his concoction of syllabus. It's his own dreadful secret, so dreadful that he uses it just once a year when he throws a tremendous whirling dervish in connection with the opening of Stampede Week.

But now he is minister of agriculture in the federal government. And the news stories from Calgary indicate that he also has a secret of animal

Italian dictator Benito Mussolini resigned and was arrested 21 years ago today—in 1943. Throughout the Italian nation demonstrations bore witness to the popular relief at the end of Il Duce's rule. He was rescued in a daring raid by German paratroopers in the Abruzzi Mountains. In 1945 he was captured with his mistress by Italian partisans and executed.

1934—Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria was slain by Nazi storm troopers.

Moby-er-Doll in New Home

VANCOUVER (CP) — Moby Doll slipped into her new home Friday night, squealing loudly and casting angry eyes at her captors.

The sleek killer whale, first ever kept alive in captivity, was moved into a hole-in-a-wharf pen after a 10-hour operation that involved the navy, army, police department, an entire shipyard crew and a host of scientists.

After a stubborn cat-and-mouse battle with her captors, she finally slipped from a floating drydock and into her new pen.

"Wow," said Dr. Murray Newman, curator of the Vancouver Aquarium. "I wasn't really sure we were going to make it."

The 17-foot, 2½-ton killer whale was harpooned off the Gulf Islands July 16.

A harpoon still sticking from her back near her blow-hole, the whale was led docilely into the harbor, to the amazement of scientists.

The harpoon has since been extracted, and aquarium officials said the wound appeared to be healing quickly.

Moby Doll had been berthed in the floating drydock here while scientists pondered what to do with it.

Friday's seven-mile ride across the harbor was uneventful. But when it came time to move from the drydock into a new pen cut from an old naval wharf, the game began.

Dr. Vince Penfold, assistant curator, perched in a small, flat-bottomed boat inside the water-filled drydock and for almost two hours battled the ever-circling mammal.

Once he grabbed Moby Doll's above-water dorsal fin to the cheers of a swelling crowd of scientists, navy frogmen, army engineers, photographers and reporters.

The killer whale was finally forced through a specially-constructed chute and into the enclosure as special microphones placed under water picked up her loud squeals.

"This is a very intelligent animal," said Dr. Newman. "It has a type of built-in radar and emits super-sonic sounds, so that it knew all the time we were trying to force it through a funnel."

The first job to be done by scientists is to find out whether Moby Doll isn't really a Moby Dick.

Dr. Penfold said that while the odds favor the female guess, it quite possibly could be a still-growing bull killer whale.

The next pressing problem is to get the whale to eat. So far she's just nibbled on a few fish of about five pounds each.

When a killer whale is ready to eat, sometimes as infrequently as once a week, it may consume as much as 200 pounds of fish, seal, porpoise or even whale.

Killer whales, voracious eaters with rows of long, sharp teeth, usually travel in packs, called pods, and will often attack other sea creatures "much larger than themselves."

Scientists plan a series of tests that may take two weeks to complete. These include data on the killer whale's heart, brain, blood, voice and chromosomes.

Despite several offers of $20,000 for Moby Doll, she won't be sold.

'Follow Victoria's Lead In Building Theatres'

By TED GASKELL

More Canadian cities should build theatres like Victoria's McPherson Playhouse rather than the 3,000-seat structures which will probably be empty half the time.

That's the opinion of Tom Patterson, founder and planning consultant for the Shakespeare festival at Stratford, Ont., in Victoria to study the possibility of Victoria's taking part in centennial festivals in 1967.

He called the 900-seat McPherson Playhouse "great, delightful," and wished more communities would build the same kind.

Mr. Patterson, representing the Dominion Centennial Commission, is touring Canada making a feasibility survey on the festival idea.

This involves centennial festivals in every provincial capital with ballet, opera, dancers and singers from many foreign countries taking part.

"The idea is to have a big birthday party. You send out invitations and guests arrive with gifts. Our invitations would be taken to other countries in 1963 and 1968 by touring Canadian companies and we hope the invitations will be accepted and the gifts take the form of tours by foreign artists," Mr. Patterson explained.

He said the festival productions wouldn't be commercial-type visits but he hoped that local dancers, singers and actors would have a chance to meet and talk with the visiting artists.

No plans are made yet but Mr. Patterson feels that a festival city would probably have two or three or perhaps more shows presented at the same time.

This wouldn't hurt box office, he explained, but would help it because several shows would attract many visitors who might be less inclined to come if only one show were playing.

The centennial commission would ensure that visiting companies would present shows to fit in, rather than compete with local festivals.

Cost of the festival would be borne by a $5,000,000 grant from the centennial commission, said Mr. Patterson, and he hopes, by financial aid from countries sending troupes to this country.

American Nations Near Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ministers of 16 Central and South American nations neared agreement Friday night on action to impose a diplomatic and trade embargo on Cuba and to warn the Castro regime it faces a possible armed attack if it continues subversive aggression.

The plan for action is contained in a resolution expected to be voted upon by the Inter-American foreign ministers conference here today. Canada is not a participant in the conference.

CUBA WARNED

The resolution warns Cuba that if the Castro regime persisted in acts of subversive aggression against any member of the Organization of American States, they preserved their right to use legitimate individual or collective defence, even to armed force.

Another part of the resolution would call on other free world nations "to demonstrate effectively their solidarity for the effective achievement of the aims of this resolution."

2,000 Miles an Hour

Secret Plane Readied in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Lyndon Johnson Friday announced the successful and secret development of a new 2,000-mile-an-hour airplane called the SR71 which will be used for global reconnaissance by the Strategic Air Command.

It was learned immediately that the SR71 is an outgrowth of the A11 aircraft program which was carried on secretly from 1959 until it was disclosed by the president last February 23.

Like its A11 sister ship, the SR71 "strategic military aircraft" was developed by Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif., and probably was the brainchild of the famed Lockheed designer Clarence L. Kelly Johnson.

Johnson conducts his advanced military design and engineering programs in a special hangar at Burbank known as the "Skunk Works."

President Johnson gave no information about the manufacturer of the secret new airplane nor did he suggest its relationship to the A11 which he had proudly announced in February was far faster than any other aircraft in the world.

Research Reports Show Diabetes Progress

TORONTO (CP)—Medical research is stepping up the search for new and better drugs to combat diabetes and thus indirectly control associated degeneration of body organs and blood circulation.

Reports on research presented Friday at the winter session of the fifth congress of the International Diabetes Federation emphasized the need for better insulins for severe cases and new oral drugs for the milder cases now becoming more common among adults.

Animal insulin from cows, pigs or sheep has been used as injections among severe cases of diabetes since its discovery as a control agent here in 1921 by the late Sir Frederick Banting and Dr. Charles H. Best. Generally, persons who develop the disease in childhood and some adult-onset cases require insulin injections because their own insulin is inactive or the pancreas gland fails to produce any of the essential digestive juice.

Milder adult cases are helped by pills which work on the pancreas to step up its activity in producing insulin.

Agencies Directory Compiled

Hospitals, police and fire department officials in Greater Victoria will soon have at their fingertips a new directory listing more than 115 health, welfare, recreation and youth training services here.

Jack Anguish, executive director of the Community

Welfare Council, said Friday that copies of the new directory compiled by the council have also been sent to provincial and public libraries.

The directory, described as the most comprehensive document of its kind ever published here, lists each organization and includes the title of the agency's chief executive, its address, office hours, telephone number, a summary of the services provided, areas served and the source of operating funds.

Agencies are shown in alphabetical order and a cross-index is provided.

Mr. Anguish said that every care has been taken to make the directory as comprehensive as possible. However, a few organizations declined to supply information and others might have been missed.

Organizations which are members of the council will receive one copy free. Other copies are available for the nominal sum of $1 from the council office, Spencerhouse, Cook St.

Lone Picketer Patrolling Job

A lone picketer, walking around a $140,000 apartment construction job at Ontario and Oswego, marked the start of a controversy between carpenters and an independent contractor.

The contractor, Ralph "Barney" Barnes, claims he is being illegally picketed because he won't sign an agreement allowing a union to dictate who he will hire.

Jim Moffatt, business agent of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, local 1598, says that the job is legally struck. Out of four eligible members, one voted, and voted in favor of strike, thereby giving the union a 100 per cent vote in favor of strike action, he said.

Mr. Barnes said that he would get an injunction as soon as any workers refuse to cross the picket line.

DIRECTOR—MUNICIPAL LABOUR RELATIONS BUREAU

Under administrative direction of an Executive Committee of several member municipalities in Greater Vancouver—the Director will administer a small Labour Relations Bureau responsible for:

1. Negotiation of collective agreements between the member municipalities and their various employee bargaining groups.
2. Provision of counselling services on labour relations problems including grievances.
3. Assistance in presentations before conciliation and arbitration boards.
4. Provision of continuing research and information services.
5. Co-ordination and development of pay and benefit plans in the member municipalities.
6. Other labour relations functions as decided by the Executive Committee.

Qualifications: University graduation with courses related to labour economics, statistics and business administration. Broad experience in labour relations at the administrative level.

Salary: $15,000 per annum. Comprehensive fringe benefits. Desirable starting date, approximately October 1, 1964. Bureau will be centrally located, but not in a municipal building.

Applications and any supporting information must be submitted to Box No. 4741, Postal Station "C", Vancouver, B.C., within fourteen days after receipt of this publication.

In May, the Department of Mines and Petroleum Resources reports that drilling was limited to 1,442 feet, or less and a 12th of the May, 1963, figure of 18,399 feet. The total for the first five months of 1964 was 306,592 feet against 540,214 feet in the corresponding period of 1963. The number of rigs working in the province at the end of May was down to two, against 12 a year ago.

In line with the less enthusiastic exploration work is a decline in the crude oil production to 4,891,486 barrels in the first five months from 5,221,998 barrels a year ago. On the other hand, production of natural gas in the province over the same period is 57,279,819,000 cubic feet against 52,726,014,000 cubic feet a year ago.

One reason for the drop in exploratory work in B.C. this year is the fact that the hot spot of the industry has moved to Alberta.

Recent finds in the Mitsu-Honda region and other fields between Edmonton and the Peace River area has caused the removal of many drilling rigs to the greener pastures there.

Another factor is that major producers and refiners appear to be satisfied to allow the B.C. production rate to run at about 32,000 barrels a day. This looks after about half the requirements of the Vancouver refinery district, and enables the coast refiners to maintain their purchases from Alberta via the Trans Mountain Pipeline.

In B.C. government circles there is an undercurrent of annoyance that the oil companies are not showing their old enthusiasm in the search for oil in the province. There has not been a major oil discovery in B.C. for two years, and the present rate of drilling does not suggest that any are in sight.

ALL RECORDS GO

A new record for any three-month period was claimed by General Motors Corp. Thursday for the three months ended June 30. Net profit of $602,000 ($2.11 a share) compared with $464,000,000 ($1.62) in the corresponding period of 1963.

G.M.'s previous quarterly record of $536,000,000 ($1.87) was established in the first quarter of this year.

The six months earnings for 1964 are $1,136,000,000 ($3.98).

PAPERMAKERS SHARE

Canadian Wallpaper Manufacturers Ltd. shared in the building construction boom of the past year, when it more than doubled its net profits in the year ended April 30, 1964.

The net earnings were $705,397, ($5.46 a share) compared with $264,065 ($2.04) in the previous fiscal year.

To make it sweeter still for shareholders of the Toronto company, the directors also announced they would pay an extra dollar dividend with the usual quarterly dividend of $1 payable on September 14. No extra dividend was paid last year, but $1 extra was paid in 1960-62.

H.B. OIL PROFIT

Net income of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas for the first six months of 1964 was $6,184,000 (34 cents) against $5,909,000 (33 cents) in the corresponding period of 1963. Net cash income was $13,427,000 (73 cents) up 10 per cent over a year ago.

CPR'S PULP BID

Pacific Logging Company, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railways is proposing to build a $60,000 pulp mill at Nelson.

William Sloan, president of Pacific Logging and formerly of the E and N in Victoria said the company was making an application for a pulp harvesting licence. It already holds a tree farm licence in the area.

The mill would have a capacity of 600 tons a day and would be built in conjunction with Kootenay Forest Products, a subsidiary of Eddy Paper.

ACCOUNTANTS PASS

First place in the 1964 economics examination of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. has been won by Victoria man, Patrick Alan Aldous, a member since 1961 of the staff of Ismay, Boiston and Dunn.

Other Vancouver Islanders who passed this examination were—A. G. Fitzgerald, R. N. Genier, R. J. Hale, R. Lewis, W. Lowe, John H. Mace, A. F. May, D. L. Peters, R. M. Scherr, W. M. Trenholme and John C. Worthing (all of Victoria).

R. B. Ballam, Port Alberni; C. Hadfield, M. F. Hun, V. W. Hutchins, J. S. Moffat and D. G. Van Shaik (all of Nanaimo).

Passes in the primary accounting and auditing examination were won by R. M. Dennstedt, D. Flaig, P. Q. Gillan, A. F. May, W. D. F. Wong and J. C. Worthing (all of Victoria) and C. Hadfield, V. W. Hutchins of Nanaimo and N. J. Nicholson of Port Alberni.

ELECTED TO COUNCIL

New members of the 15-member Real Estate Council of B.C. for the year ended June 30, 1965 include a Nanaimo realtor, Kenneth T. Guest of Bastion Realty.

Other Vancouver Islanders re-appointed to the council are Kenneth J. Davis, Whitmore and Co. Ltd. and Philip D. P. Holmes of Pemberton Holmes Ltd. of Victoria.

Malaysians May Expect Canadian Aid

OTTAWA (UPI)—Malaysian Premier Tengku Abdul Rahman's visit to Canada next week may result in stepped-up Canadian aid to the embattled Southeast Asian federation and a sale of Canadian aircraft.

Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons this morning that the premier will receive a sympathetic hearing to any request for help in his fight against Indonesia and the Communist Chinese.

NO MANPOWER

Pearson declined to indicate what support Canada might lend until he learns of the visitor's requirements.

But he said he assumed the request will be for defence supplies and perhaps some assistance in training. Pearson ruled out the possibility of a Canadian manpower contribution.

John Labatt Limited

...and growth!

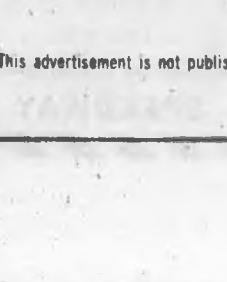

"Twelve years ago, John Labatt Limited recognized and accepted the challenge of our fast-changing world. It began planning and executing a series of moves that would expand its role from that of a modest Ontario brewery to a vigorous international corporation. Today, the company operates 11 breweries across Canada, a major U.S. brewing enterprise in California, an expanding interest in pharmaceuticals, fine chemicals, veterinary products and feed supplements. It is a partner with European corporations in an international brewing enterprise and in research alliances. John Labatt Limited is now more than just a brewer."

J. H. MOORE

J. B. CRONYN

N. E. HARDY

J. H. Moore, president, announces changes in the corporate structure of John Labatt Limited to accommodate its rapid growth and to facilitate future development. The corporate reorganization separates the interests of John Labatt Limited into four main areas: brewing in Canada, brewing in the United States, bio-technical operations, and international and real estate interests. John B. Cronyn, executive vice-president, will direct corporate planning and international operations for John Labatt Limited.

All brewing operations in Canada will be controlled by a newly-formed company called Labatt Breweries of Canada Limited. Its president will be N. E. Hardy who is an executive vice-president of the parent John Labatt Limited. Mr. Hardy will direct the new company from London, Ontario. Labatt's produces and sells Labatt's Pilsener, Gold Keg and 50 Ale in British Columbia.

Milligan Given Nod For Soccer Sanctum

Wally Milligan was elected a director of the Pacific Coast Soccer League late Thursday night, but he didn't know about it until league president Bill Fidler got him out of bed at 4 Friday morning.

"I'd been out of town for a few days," Milligan said last night. "A week or so ago I was asked if I'd run against Charlie Alcock who was up for re-election. There were four already running, so I said I'd let my name stand. I never thought I'd be elected. Milligan didn't think any more about it and went on his holiday. "I wondered who was calling this morning. It was Fidler to ask me to be at an executive meeting Wednesday."

Milligan, who resigned as manager of Victoria United in June, believes he is the first Victorian to sit on the PCSL executive. "I'm very pleased about it because I think Victoria deserves to get a man on the board. It's been a bit too much of an all-Vancouver business in the past."

At Thursday's meeting Seattle Hungarians and Wallaces were both dropped from the league. "I was sorry to see Seattle go," Milligan said. "It was another town and another park which I think the league needed."

The University of British Columbia was granted a franchise in the league for next season to bring the number of teams to seven: Colombus, Canadians, North Shore, New Westminster, Victoria, Firefighters and UBC.

UBC has won the first division of Mainland League for the past two seasons and brings to the PCSL another badly needed playing area.

It also seems likely that Victoria's George Wright and Barry Sadler will line up with New Westminster next season. Wright has been living in Vancouver for some time. Sadler's parents are now on the mainland, and the talented goalie expects to be attending UBC next year.

Sam Carmichael followed Gelberger and Ferree with 135. Sam Snead shot a 68 for a total of 137. Billy Casper, last year's winner, had a 69 for 138. Toronto's Al Balding also fired a 69 for 138.

Bobby Nichols, the PGA champion, shot a 70 and Julius Boros a 71 to finish among the 400 group.

Will Hornumuk of Winnipeg ended the tournament's second day with 68-73-141, surviving the cutoff.

Fifty-one players came in below the two-round par total of 142. A total of 68 players survived the cut off, set at 144.

Nobody Near Venturi's 63

At Henley Regatta

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The St. Catharines Rowing Club all but sewed up its fourth consecutive Maple Leaf Trophy Friday, adding another pair of victories in the third day of competition at the 82nd Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

It was the sixth set of gold medals for St. Catharines crews at the 1964 Canadian Rowing Championships, and ran the host club's point total to 240.

That's 164 better than second-place Buffalo West Sides in the chase for the regatta points title. Toronto Argonauts are third with 65 points and the Detroit Boat Club fourth with 57.

It remained for Toronto Argonauts to come up with the day's biggest sweep over victory, the junior eight.

The win, says Argos' first in crew since the 1957 Henley and marked a comeback for the Toronto Olympic eight-oared hopefuls who rowed a poor third in Tuesday trials here. Buffalo West Sides were second and St. Catharines third.

B.C. CREWS WIN

Vancouver scored its first victory at the Henley in Friday's rowing, winning the senior coxswain four by a deck over Buffalo.

The crew, stroked by Daryl Sturdy, was the stern four of the Olympic eight.

Vancouver clocked 7:10.5 in winning with a second Vancouver crew third and another West Side entry fourth.

The quarter-mile dash also went to Vancouver, the combined Vancouver-University of British Columbia crew, which will represent Canada at the Olympics, splashed home in 1:16 to beat Argos junior eight by a deck. Vancouver's reserve eight was third, followed by a crew of St. Catharines lightweight.

The event did not count in the point standing.

Bill Willson and Tom Voss of Oyster Bay, N.Y., won the junior double while Bob Hardegan of Philadelphia Vespers came up with his second 154-Henley medal in the senior 155-pound single. He won Wednesday's junior race.

The junior 145-pound single went to Richard Manno of Philadelphia Undines while Tom Kletatsky took the senior 135-pound single for St. Paul's Minnesota Boat Club. Today's 15 senior finals will windup to this

At Henley Regatta

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The St. Catharines Rowing Club all but sewed up its fourth consecutive Maple Leaf Trophy Friday, adding another pair of victories in the third day of competition at the 82nd Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

It was the sixth set of gold medals for St. Catharines crews at the 1964 Canadian Rowing Championships, and ran the host club's point total to 240.

That's 164 better than second-place Buffalo West Sides in the chase for the regatta points title. Toronto Argonauts are third with 65 points and the Detroit Boat Club fourth with 57.

It remained for Toronto Argonauts to come up with the day's biggest sweep over victory, the junior eight.

The win, says Argos' first in crew since the 1957 Henley and marked a comeback for the Toronto Olympic eight-oared hopefuls who rowed a poor third in Tuesday trials here. Buffalo West Sides were second and St. Catharines third.

B.C. CREWS WIN

Vancouver scored its first victory at the Henley in Friday's rowing, winning the senior coxswain four by a deck over Buffalo.

The crew, stroked by Daryl Sturdy, was the stern four of the Olympic eight.

Vancouver clocked 7:10.5 in winning with a second Vancouver crew third and another West Side entry fourth.

The quarter-mile dash also went to Vancouver, the combined Vancouver-University of British Columbia crew, which will represent Canada at the Olympics, splashed home in 1:16 to beat Argos junior eight by a deck. Vancouver's reserve eight was third, followed by a crew of St. Catharines lightweight.

The event did not count in the point standing.

Simpson Bats 12 Hours

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Bobby Simpson, captain of the Australian cricket team, hit 265 not out Friday and led his side to an apparently impregnable position in the fourth cricket Test match against England.

The Aussies have piled up a mammoth total of 570 for 4 wickets—and they could go on batting Saturday.

England, one down in the series, needs to win this match to have any chance of regaining the Ashes, symbol of cricket supremacy.

The Aussies, starting the day on 253 for 2, showed no mercy. In the long, hot day, England captured only two wickets. Norman O'Neill, star stroke-maker of the team, was bowled by John Price for 47. Peter Burge was caught by Price off Tom Cartwright for 24.

Simpson and his new partner, Brian Booth, defied everything the English bowlers could pitch at them. By the end of the day the fifth wicket partnership had reached 188 and Booth was 82 not out.

Simpson's innings has lasted 12 hours so far and is the longest ever played for Australia against England.

The match is scheduled to last three more days.

At Wicket, Kent beat Lancashire by 38 runs for 121 and 172. Leicestershire 121 and 67.

At Chesham, Sussex beat Essex by 8 wickets, 189 to 130. Essex 130 and 30. Sussex 273 and 48 for 1 wicket.

At Bristol, Middlesex beat Gloucestershire by 10 wickets. Gloucestershire 223 and 155. Middlesex 244 for 8 declared and 22 for no wicket.

At The Oval, Surrey beat Glamorgan by 10 runs, 275 and 141 for 6 declared. Glamorgan 179 and 102 (2).

At Nottingham, match drawn. Nottingham 159 and 201 for 7 (H. Win).

At Evesham, Warwickshire beat Lancashire by 5 wickets. Lancashire 121 and 200 (G. Pullar 81). Warwickshire 155 and 204 for 8 (A.V. Homer 71).

At Taunton, match drawn. Hampshire 154 and 177. Somerset 132 and 213 for 7 (G. Atkinson 71).

'So Many Union Jacks'

Two Gay Canadiennes Happy Hitch-Hikers

By DON GAIN

Two happy-go-lucky French Canadiennes breezed into Victoria this week at the end of a trans-Canada hiking trip that started in Montreal June 1.

Therese Blanchet, 20, of Victoriaville, Que., and Mariette Lavole, 29, of Montreal, were full of impressions of their trip and opinions on bi-culturalism in Canada.

Their views were given—between much Gallic laughter and sprightly French singing—after cubmaster Alfred Broome, 1596 Clive Drive, gave them a lift to town from the ferry at Swartz Bay.

'DON'T KNOW'

"The people we've met have been wonderful to us," said Therese, a voluble social science student at the University of Montreal, "but they don't know anything about Quebec out west."

"Well, what is the problem?" I asked. "See," said Therese, her eyes widening, "they don't even know what the problem is."

Mariette laughed and both girls started talking in English and French. "MY COUNTRY" "I feel that this country out here is part of my country," said Mariette, a registered nurse who will study education at university this fall. She is travelling with a cast on her leg.

"I worked as a nurse at Mineral Springs Hospital in Banff," she said, "but after a week I fell while out hiking and broke my leg and came back on horseback as a patient."

Therese squealed, "I should tell him about the time I got lost in the woods at Yoho Park (near Field) and six wardens were out looking for me. I walked 16 miles and found I was on a glacier."

TENT STOLEN

"I walked from Banff to Lake Louise one day and we walked through falling snow. It was June 26," said Mariette.

"Tell him about the night somebody stole our tent while we were sleeping on the camp table near the fire to keep warm," said Therese. "We'd like to get it back."

"I want to go fishing," said Mariette. "We never saw so many Union Jacks," said Therese. "We thought we were in another country."

HADN'T NOTICED

"The fleur-de-lis is on the red ensign," I said.

They both looked surprised. Therese didn't understand. Mariette explained it to her in French. They both shrugged their shoulders. Apparently they hadn't noticed it.

"We don't have a real union in Canada," said Mariette. "The flag discussion is symbolic of the disunity. In 10 years Quebec will be ready to separate."

CULTURE

"What do you mean ready?" I asked.

"Maybe by then it will be economically possible," Mariette said.

"Well, don't you think Quebec should be ready to go it alone, economical or not, or on the other hand to remain a part of Canada. It shouldn't be decided by economics," Mr. Broome said.

"It's a matter of culture," said Mariette. "Why should we have to learn to speak English and do business in English?"

HAPPY PEOPLE

"English-speaking federal government employees are going to have to learn French," I said.

"Yes," said Mariette, "but I don't see why they should have to. That's the problem. There are two cultures whether we like it or not. You can't combine them without losing them."

"I think the best solution to the problem is to find the best way for the people to be happy," said Therese.

'GOING EVERYWHERE'

The girls have to be back in Montreal Sept. 15 but have found they like "this life of going everywhere."

They said they didn't know how long they would stay in Victoria or where. "We never make plans," Therese said.

They shouldered their heavy packs, Mariette with her leg in a cast, Therese with a guitar as deck cargo. "Maybe we'll go to Alaska next," said Mariette.

Judy's Comeback A Show-Stopper

LONDON — Judy Garland, whose singing career seemed all but over when she was jeered at an Australian concert last month, was "overwhelmed with joy" by her showstopping comeback at the Palladium Theatre. Only three hours out of a rest home and in defiance of her doctor's orders, Judy sang "Over The Rainbow" and won a cheering ovation believed to have topped the acclaim ever given any other performer at the famed Palladium. After her fiasco in Melbourne, Judy suffered a nervous collapse in Hong Kong and hinted that her days as a singer were over.

ABERDEEN, Scotland — Prince Charles is reported responding well to treatment for pneumonia at a private hospital here. The 15-year-old heir to the British throne was taken to the Fraser Nursing Home Thursday when he complained of feeling ill while on a camping trip on the Balmoral estate of his mother, Queen Elizabeth.

LONDON—Actor Peter Sellers and his bride of seven months, Britt Ekland, are expecting a baby in January, says The Daily Express. Sellers, 38, still is recuperating from a heart attack he suffered in Hollywood last February.

MONTE CARLO — France's public enemy no. 1, a swarthy Corsican named Jacques Casanova, is the prime suspect in the biggest jewelry holdup in Riviera history. Moving with sang-froid and savoir-faire, five masked bandits took less than two minutes during the mid-morning aperitif hour Thursday to shoot their way out of a jewelry store with about $2 million worth of diamonds, emeralds and other gems.

MARYVILLE, Tenn. — Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Carpenter were married 45 years ago. But 23 years later they were divorced. This week they tied the knot again. The couple celebrated their 67th birthdays by remarrying.

PETERBOROUGH, England — Sgt. Bill Catt parachuted from 3,000 feet during an air show Thursday and was carried away from the target by a sudden gust of wind. Catt landed on a tennis court, sprained his ankle and was trapped behind a 10-foot wire fence until the caretaker unlocked the gate.

MONTREAL — The following item appeared as a classified add in the French language daily Montreal Matin Friday under the heading: Rupture de Mariage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilles Lajole regret to announce to their invited guests the "Rupture de Mariage" of their daughter Micheline to Yvon Fournier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alde Fournier.

The reason for calling off the impending wedding:

"Mr. Fournier refused to sign a marriage contract." Under Quebec civil law, patrimonial after the Napoleonic code, couples usually sign a contract before the wedding, designed, in part, to protect the property rights of the wife.

NEW YORK — Zeckendorf Hotels Corp., a subsidiary of Webb & Knapp, Inc., filed a petition of bankruptcy in federal court Thursday, listing liabilities of $12,482,995 and assets of $3,743,286.

VANCOUVER — Dr. Brian D. Pale, professor of chemistry at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., Friday was appointed head of the department of chemistry at the new Simon Fraser University here. He takes up his post next February.

VANCOUVER — City Commissioner Gerald Brown said Friday city council will likely consider direct negotiations with the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority over proposed bus fare increases before taking a brief to the Public Utilities Commission. B.C. Hydro has an application before the commission seeking to increase its bus fares from 15 to 25 cents in the Vancouver and Victoria areas.

VANCOUVER — Amateur lawyer David Davis returned to court Thursday armed with 24 pages of hand printed testimony to support his claim Magistrate James Bartment has no jurisdiction to try him. The 21-year-old apprentice electrician claims the court lost jurisdiction when a five-month adjournment was ordered without his consent. He is charged with causing wilful damage by throwing a bottle through the window of a moving car. Magistrate Bartment will give his decision Aug. 7.

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Dr. Werner von Braun, director of George C. Marshall Space Flight Centre, was presented with a cowboy hat by Montana Governor Tim Babcock, after the former German scientist spoke on Men to the Moon — Why and How to about 5,000 people at the Montana State College.

Headed for Scrap Heap

Final Flight Plan Filed For Sabre Jet Fighters

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Sabre jet fighter, a strong vertebra in the backbone of western European defence for a decade, is joining the CF-100 jet interceptor, Comet jet transport, North Star transport and Lancaster reconnaissance plane on the RCAF's scrap heap.

The last five RCAF Sabres which will undergo major overhaul are scheduled to come out of the enamel and heating company plant at Charlottetown by the end of this month.

At one time, the Sabre with its Canadian-made Orenda engine was the best jet fighter that NATO had in Europe. It was used in eight RCAF squadrons in France and West Germany beginning in 1952. Twenty-one RCAF pilots flew the Sabre in the Korean War.

All told, the air force purchased 1,182 Sabres for some $300,000,000. It now is down to its last 113 and 49 of these are in storage and 21 others will soon be sold for scrap.

An RCAF spokesman said Friday that 35 Sabres still are being used as trainers at Chatham, N.B., but will gradually be retired as the CL-41 jet trainer comes into increased use.

India's Food Lack Spurs Communists

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's government is beset by a mounting food crisis and a Communist scheme to capitalize on it, raising fears a wave of violence will sweep India's hungry millions.

With the food situation already explosive and unrest growing, the pro-Moscow leader of India's splintered Communist party said Friday a nationwide demonstration will be staged next month to protest sharp price rises and short supplies of wheat, rice and other basic items.

S. A. A. Dange, chairman of the Communist Party of India, which lost about 40 per cent of its membership last April in a split with the pro-Peking Communists, told reporters the mass agitation effort will be launched Aug. 24-28.

"A government which cannot feed the people must quit," Dange said.

He said the pro-Chinese Communists and all other opposition elements will be invited to join the protest against the government's failure to check food prices.

East Coast Offered Power Boon

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood said Friday development of Labrador's Hamilton Falls' power potential, and its delivery to the New England states through the Atlantic Provinces, would "readjust the economic balance in Canada."

He said in a telephone interview the availability of low-cost electricity in the Atlantic Provinces would give the areas "far, far greater economic strength and make them more important in the whole Canadian economy."

Present plans, he said, call for transmission of the power by land towers and submarine cables. The full potential of the Hamilton Falls power project has been estimated at 9,000,000 horsepower.

Advice from Traffic Experts

Slow Reaction Causes Jams

By A. H. MURPHY

Judging by the breakaway time at some intersection traffic lights it might be better if Victorians timed their driving to be off the streets during rush hours.

Reaction time from a standing start until the traffic is in motion is slower at some city intersections, than probably any other place in Canada, authorities say.

On the other hand, on some streets such as Bay and Hillside, traffic moves through the signals quickly and efficiently.

The ratio of elderly drivers in Victoria is high and it was understandable that reaction time, particularly in residential areas, should be higher. However it is not always a question of physical reaction they say.

Traffic division people have noticed that many Victoria drivers fail to move on the turn of the light not because they do not react quickly, but because their eyes are not on the light.

If the lead car at an intersection breaks slowly when the light changes, it means that anywhere from five to 10 vehicles are unable to clear the intersection before the light changes.

If this happens more than once, a chain reaction is set up, meaning some cars near the end of the line may have to wait for two or three light changes before getting through.

If a motorist, through age or disability, is not able to react normally when lights change he should, in the opinion of city experts, stay off the roads during rush hours.

When shipyard, mill and dockyard workers pour into the Bay and Hillside intersection at peak hours, traffic whistles through in good order. Where it does not whistle through is in Oak Bay. One of the slowest intersections in the city is the Oak Bay-Fort intersection officials claim.

Bonner Blames Ottawa For High-Cost Credit

Balance Needed

'Elect Senate' Ottawa Urged

The members of the Canadian Senate should be elected, perhaps for six-year terms, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said here Friday.

He also said a new balance should be struck for representation in the upper house.

At present there is "undue weight" of representation from eastern Canada while the Prairies and B.C. are under-represented.

"A country that feels it is so democratic that it can't abide titles for its citizens should go the whole length and see that all members of its legislative arms are duly elected," said Mr. Bonner.

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Federal governments over the years have "driven the public willy nilly to high-cost credit sources" by failing to encourage establishment of more large chartered banks in Canada, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

The proliferation of "near-banks"—trust and mortgage companies and finance companies—has all been at the expense of the chartered banks.

CREDIT COST BOOSTED

The fetters placed on chartered banks while the near-bank type of operation has been on the rise throughout Canada, said Mr. Bonner, has raised the cost of credit to "that section of the population that can least afford the higher interest rates."

tion, now set for next Wednesday, was necessary in order to obtain a transcript of "many hours" of testimony given last week and to allow committee members time to study it.

Mr. Bonner said he disagreed with the contention by some Senate committee members that if the Bank of British Columbia was granted a charter all provinces would establish similar institutions.

NOT THE CASE

He said obviously this would not be the case with Ontario and Quebec which already have between them all the banks in Canada.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan would be served by the Bank of Western Canada. The Maritimes could support a bank only "with difficulty," he said. And Alberta has a treasury branch system of granting credit.

So B.C. stands alone among the provinces as requiring a local bank at this time.

"The people who are forced to borrow from these companies at interest rates of 18 per cent and higher could become valuable bank customers paying between 6 per cent and 10 per cent interest on their borrowing," he said.

HEADING FOR BOOM

Canada is heading for a boom period and the expansion in the next 10 years could prove unnecessarily expensive to the country unless a deliberate effort is made now to broaden the national credit base.

Mr. Bonner told a press conference on his return from Ottawa, where he appeared with the B.C. delegation headed by Premier Bennett at Wednesday's session of the Senate banking committee, that government participation "in a minor way" was essential to the success of the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

WILL DISAPPEAR

"The moment the government steps out of the picture, I say, the flush of enthusiasm that has so far accompanied the bank plans will disappear."

This would mean, however, the failure of what Mr. Bonner termed "the grand design" to make B.C. a major financial centre in Canada.

VALUABLE ADJUNCTS

"Both the Bank of Western Canada and the Laurentide Bank are valuable adjuncts to the banking community," said the attorney-general. "But both have only modest capitalization."

The Bank of British Columbia on the other hand will have capitalization of $100,000,000 and could have a further $200,000,000 in reserve, making it the largest bank in Canada.

FOR TRANSCRIPT

Mr. Bonner said the government's application for a bank charter has neither been delayed nor rejected by the Senate.

Kilts Color Games Preview

By DON GAIN

Tartans flashed on the Empress lawn late Friday as 100 bairns gave a preview of today's Highland Games.

Cameron and Black Watch and Red Robertson flared as highlanders danced the fling, the Irish jig and the sword dance. Stewarts, Dress and Royal Buchanan and Macfarlane kilts caught the evening sun and the San Francisco Boy Scout Pipe and Drum band played the traditional tunes.

Today the 27th annual games will get under way in Macdonald Park at 9 a.m. Official opening will take place at 1:30 p.m. The visiting band worked all year to finance its tour of the games, said Scoutmaster Ed Rodriguez, a printer in the composing room of the San Francisco Examiner.

"We'll go to the games in Vancouver, Prosser, Wash., and Seattle," he said, "competing in individual piping and band competitions."

"But first we're going to go camping at Sooke and Nanaimo. We're here on an official goodwill tour. We met your mayor today."

It will cost the 24 boys in the band a little more than $3,000.

Breaking Out of Bank Just as Difficult

Banks are difficult places to break into but they appear to be equally hard to get out of as employee Christina Shore discovered Friday night. She phoned police at 6:30 p.m. to say she had accidentally been locked in the Royal Bank of Canada at Douglas and Pandora.

Police phoned the bank manager, who went down and released his employee.

he said, for the complete three-week tour.

"We had paper and rag drives to raise money over the past year," he said. "We had turkey shoots and appeared in parades. The boys worked hard."

As he spoke the band paraded back and forth in their Royal Stewart kilts and their sporrans. Here and there a cairngorm glinted. Tunics were regular issue of Boy Scout khaki.

About six of the band are Chinese. "Our boys come from all over the San Francisco Bay area," Mr. Rodriguez said. "We've been competing in the various games and we hope to win some prizes here."

The man who taught his pipers is John Biggar, now of Vancouver, he said.

May Halt Search

Missing Man Heading Home?

An elderly man who was the object of a search in the Sooke area may be attempting to return to his former home in Campbell River.

Sooke RCMP voiced this possibility after a party of 20 Sooke residents and police searched the bush along roads in Sooke area without results.

WENT FOR WALK

Missing is Waldo Adamson, 81, who had been living with relatives in Sooke since April. He left his home near the Sooke RCMP detachment office at 12:30 p.m. Thursday to go for a walk.

A tracking dog was called in Thursday evening after Mr. Adamson was missed. The dog tried Thursday night and again Friday morning but was unable to pick up a trail.

About 20 Sooke residents took part in the search and checked the bush along all the roads.

Raccoon Loses Battle

The SPCA was forced to kill a badly injured raccoon which was apparently in a fight with a dog at Douglas and Simcoe Friday night.

The animal was first seen by Jim Thrift, 16, of 338 Niagara and Tom Thibault, 90 San Jose. They tried to catch it to put it into Beacon Hill Park but the 'coon bit Jim then ran up a tree.

It later climbed onto a nearby roof where four boys captured it and held it until the SPCA inspector arrived.

The raccoon's back was injured and the tail mangled and the inspector was forced to do away with it.

Home Sunday

One hundred crew members of HMCS Skeena will arrive at Patricia Bay in an RCAF aircraft from eastern Canada at approximately 5:15 p.m. Sunday.

The destroyer-escort left Esquimalt about a month ago for conversion in an eastern shipyard.

Adamson

Mr. Adamson was known to use when he took walks.

Police said Friday night they doubted whether the search would be resumed today unless more leads came to light.

Mr. Adamson was living with his stepson and grandchildren. He was a resident of Campbell River for some years where he worked as a logger.

He is five feet, five inches tall, balding, and wears steel-rimmed glasses. He was wearing a long tan jacket, tan peaked cap, a grey shirt and dark trousers.

Ratfish Wins For Boy

By KEN JOHNSON

A two-pound five-ounce ratfish, pulled out from among the driftwood at Ogden Point, won 15-year-old Tim Chatton a shiny brand new bicycle Friday.

The grotesque member of the fish family was the heaviest catch in the annual children's fishing derby, sponsored by a city department store.

Around 1,500 children up to the age of 16 turned up with rods and reels to clamour out along the breakwater off Dallas Road and join in the three-hour contest.

Officials from the department store and parks program supervisor Gordon Hartley stood by at the weigh-in as the children brought in their catches.

PLEASANT WELCOME

It was a pleasant welcome-to-Victoria gift for young Tim. He and his family recently moved into their home at 1651 St. Francis Wood from Los Angeles.

There were ties for second and third prizes. Winners of the second prize snorkeled sets with one-pound 14-ounce catches were John Lucas, 13, 1337 Lyall, and Bruce Gibson, 10, 1995 Casa Marcia.

Third prizes of rod and line were won by Christine Harknett, 10, 814 Mann and Don Norris, 15, 133 Superior.

Disaster Operation Not Quite Perfect

By IAN ARBOL

The signal went out from the office of the medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. R. E. Adams, at 7:58 p.m. Friday that the hospital's emergency measures for a minor disaster were to be put into effect.

An earthquake had struck the Victoria area and some 25 casualties were expected from the hardest hit region—Cordova Bay.

That much was hypothetical.

The measures that followed were a realistic follow-through of the actual procedure that would be used in a real disaster.

Calls went out to key hospital personnel who, in turn, called members of their staffs.

Within 15 minutes the majority of those alerted at home were at their hospital emergency duties.

The main artery was the front lobby of St. Joseph's where surgeons stood ready to diagnose and then designate destination for each patient to either: closed fracture treatment area, walking wounded area, resuscitation area, the operating rooms or patient ward treatment areas.

There was even an area for distraught relatives. They were to be diverted from entrance into the hospital and taken to the auditorium of the nurses' residence for coffee and tea—and information when available.

When the first ambulance sirens sounded, all was ready. But two unscheduled events interfered.

The first occurred outside the entrance to the lobby while the hospital staff was waiting for the first earthquake casualties. The mail came through.

A mail truck drew up at the spot designated for ambulance stretcher cases. Presented with this first opportunity of the night for decisive action, a hospital official waved it on with a quick "emergency" explanation.

The second unscheduled event took place inside the front door. The chief orderly, whose job it was to direct the placement of casualties and the allotment of stock supplies, blankets and stretchers, was not at hand. He was busy with a real emergency case that had just come in.

Concerning the outcome of the exercise, which involved facilities and personnel in all departments, Dr. Adams said it was a useful evening, generally successful.

The real value will be in some revisions of the regulations to take care of the weaknesses to ensure improved procedures for the future, he said.

The exercise was over at 9 p.m. However, half an hour later, no one had told the police, who were still maintaining a closed-off Humboldt Street between Rupert and Blanshard.

Heirloom Ring Worn by Bride

Afternoon sunshine enhanced the beauty of the pioneer Anglican Church, Saint Mary the Virgin, at Metchosis for the recent marriage of Violet May Wickham and Mr. Clive William Duggan.

Rev. Canon H. M. Bolton officiated at the quiet family wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Eric Wickham, Bamfield, B.C., and the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Duggan, Pickford Road, Colwood, and formerly of Metchosis.

Given in marriage by her father, the fair-haired bride was lovely in a fitted gown of peau de soie, made by herself, and featuring a bouffant overskirt and chantilly lace jacket. A sparkling coronet held her three-tier veil of illusion net and her only jewelry was a pair of diamond earrings, gift of the groom. She carried a cascade of red roses and white stephanotis and "something old" was the bride's engagement ring set with a diamond which has been in the groom's family for six generations.

Miss Nora Wickham was bridesmaid for her sister. She chose a gown of daffodil yellow nylon and wore a band of fresh summer flowers in her hair. Gold and violet flowers were in her colonial bouquet.

Mr. Terry Wik was best man.

During signing of the register, Mrs. Ralph Willing

MR. AND MRS. C. W. DUGGAN

played several selections of wedding music.

Mr. Hugh Watson proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed in the parish hall. A gold and white, three-tiered cake, topped by traditional two doves, centred the bride's table.

For her going-away costume the bride chose a soft wool suit in off-white, with coral accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Duggan are now making their home on Maple Avenue, Sooke.

Among the out-of-town relatives attending were Major and Mrs. L. P. McGuire, Fort Ord, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Wickham, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Sandberg, 100 Mile House, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Mitchell, North Surrey, B.C.; Mr. E. Wickham, Jr.; Bamfield; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Potts, all of Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. Clive C. Justice, Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hof, of Cobble Hill, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Columba Maria, to Mr. John Almer Beddis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Almer Beddis of Coquitlam, and formerly of Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, August 8 at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Cathedral with Father Maurice Costelloe officiating.—(Campbell Studio)

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Lloyd, 3686 Blenkinsop Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Marguerite, to Mr. Ronald Wilson Tomlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Tomlin, 5089 Wesley Road. The wedding will take place in St. Aidan's Church with Rev. I. Avery of Prince George officiating.—(Kandid Camera)

Homer Big Hit

The homer in fashion for fall has nothing to do with the Greek epic poet or a home run in baseball. It is, instead, a comfortable garment in which to do homework.

Homers are expected to be great hits in dormitories and sororities of college campuses. There is great variety in style.

ing. Some homers are jump suits, some pajamas, others are robes both short and long, while still others are "eaself dresses or pleasant pinafores."

It seems that just about any comfortable outfit which might be conducive to study will be called a homer this autumn and winter.

'At Home' Honors Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Attwell, 12 Oswego Street, who were married in Victoria in 1914, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday, July 29. In honor of the occasion they will be feted at an "at home" to be held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Justice, 848 Swan Street, Saanich, this afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Attending the celebration will be their sons, Mr. Harold Attwell of Victoria and Mr. Reg Attwell, Nanaimo, a daughter, Miss Gwen Attwell, Tranquille, B.C., and 10 of their 12 grandchildren.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from the woman who signed her letter "Exaggerated Grief?" She was criticizing a friend who fell apart at the funeral service of her husband. The writer hinted that the widow might be a candidate for an Academy Award, since her husband had been ill for a long time and his death came as no surprise.

Your answer seemed to support the mourner. You said, "The death of a loved one—expected or not—can be a traumatic experience." Candidly, Ann, I was surprised at the answer.

Highly, civilized, cultured, well-educated individuals are in control of themselves at all times. The more primitive the people, the noisier the funeral. I believe in the therapeutic value of tears. But the shedding of tears should be private. Public exhibition of grief is a sign of ignorance and weakness. FROM IOWA

Dear Iowa: How wonderful if all of us could be in perfect control of our emotions at all times. Humans—since we are human—cannot always achieve this level of perfection. Even machines have been known to break down occasionally.

The notion that only the weak and ignorant shed tears in public indicates such a lack of compassion that I would not dignify the observation by commenting further.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are against mixed marriages. I wish you would also come out against marriage between people of different political parties. I think it would help reduce the staggering divorce rate in this country.

I married a Republican. He tells me I would vote for a ring-tailed monkey if he ran on the Democratic ticket. My husband insists that although he is a registered Republican he votes for the man and not the party.

Something is wrong with this approach to politics but I can't put it into words. Can you?—POLLS APART

Dear Polls: Many strong party members believe if the party is to be preserved they must support the party, no matter who the candidate. This old-fashioned, machine-type approach is losing out, and it's a good thing.

The voter who refuses to support his party's poor candidate is a healthy influence on BOTH parties.

The notion that any second-rater can be crammed down the voter's throat as long as he is on the "right" ticket should be knocked in the head.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law minds her own business, my kids don't give me any lip and the neighbors keep their dog off our property. So what am I writing about? My problem deals with business ethics and I need advice.

In our state a law prohibits the sale of cigarettes to anyone under 18. We own a small neighborhood store. Occasionally kids come in with notes from their mothers asking us to sell them cigarettes. I tell them I'm sorry but I can't do it.

This makes the mothers mad and I have lost some good customers because of it. They then send the children to the chain store on the corner where they can get what they want.

My wife says I should stop being a simpleton. What do you say?—ARGUE ARGUE ARGUE

Dear Argue: It's unfair of people to ask you to break the law and then take their business elsewhere because you refuse. The next time a mother sends her child in for cigarettes, phone her and read her this column. Maybe she'll be mad at both of us, but it's worth the try.

Tisdalle-McGregor

Vernon to Be Home

Rev. C. Fawcett, assisted by Rev. V. Morrison, officiated at the double-ring ceremony in North Douglas Tabernacle which united Belva Marie Mc-Gregor and Mr. Vernon Douglas Tisdalle.

Baskets of white gladioli and golden chrysanthemums decorated the church. Organist was Miss Dorothy Wratton and the soloists, Mrs. E. Kraft and Mrs. W. Heine. Mr. and Mrs. Kraft sang a duet and Miss Judy Coghill played a violin solo, during signing of the register.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. R. Ray McGregor, 668 Canterbury Road, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tisdalle, 829 Tulip Avenue. Mr. McGregor gave his daughter in marriage.

A floor-length gown of shimmering pure silk, classically styled, was worn by the bride. The Empire-line neckline, fashioned with portrait bodice, was highlighted with Guipure lace appliques. Lace effect was repeated at tips of the long lily-point sleeves. A full skirt extended from unpressed pleats into a cathedral train which was centred with lace applique panel.

The bouffant cathedral veil of illusion net misted from a tiered pillbox headpiece of Guipure lace and bridal roses edged with seed pearls. Only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, gift of the groom. Red roses and stephanotis were in the bouquet.

Matron of honor, Mrs. W. Yaroshuk, the bride's sister; bridesmaids, Mrs. W. Heine and Mrs. P. Wade, and the bridesmaid, Miss Ruth Bahlert, chose identical bell-skirted gowns of gold snowdrop brocade. They wore toning shoes and veiled, pleated wedding ring style hats.

Amber and Princess Ann chrysanthemums were in their bouquets.

Flower girls, the Misses Grace Krymsa and Bonnie-Jean Fairbairn, wore white nylon frocks topped with taffeta and enhanced with green cummerbunds. Esther Reed daisies and amber chrysanthemums were in the baskets they carried.

Best man was Mr. William Yaroshuk. Walt Heine, Paul Wade, D. Munk, Leonard Tisdalle, and Dan McGregor ushered guests to pews marked with amber chrysanthemums.

Satin cushions were carried by the ring bearers, Wayne Chow and Brian Beaumont.

Rev. Dale Dunn proposed the toast at a reception in Tally-Ho Travelodge. A three-tier cake decorated with silver leaves centred the bride's table. Arrangements of white bells and tulle and white candles completed decorations.

For travelling on honeymoon to Oregon and other United States points, the bride wore a pink wool crepe suit, floral hat on tone, white accessories and white rose corsage.

The couple will live in Vernon, B.C.

PERSONAL MENTION

There will be 170 guests this afternoon when Mr. Henry C. Gilliland, dean of the University of Victoria, and Mrs. Gilliland entertain at a "welcome home" reception in the Faculty Building on the Gordon Head campus.

The gathering is in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Gilliland, who were married on July 11 in Leicestershire, Eng. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Brown, daughter of Mrs. Maude E. Brown, Leicester, and the late Cyril Lawrence Brown.

The couple arrived here last Tuesday and are staying in the Richmond Avenue home of the groom's parents. They plan to return to England in August where Mr. Gilliland will resume his research work in physics at the Royal Air Force Establishment at Farnborough, Hampshire.

At the reception, Mrs. A. W. Johns will be hostess in the tea room. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. W. H. Hickman, Mrs. Hugh Farquhar, Mrs. E. J. MacLeod and Mrs. G. S. Thornbury. Servers are Mrs. David Lee, Mrs. Robert Paille, the Misses Janice Hickman, Marianne Johns, Katharine Bergbusch, Anne Kemp, Betty Thornbury and Jane Gilliland.

Out-of-town guests attending will include Mrs. W. B. Radford and Mrs. A. M. MacWhinnie of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Craigie, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Reed-Thomson, all of Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paille of Enderby, B.C.

Attend Wedding

Among the out-of-town guests at the Ecott-De Laney wedding in St. Mary's Anglican Church were Mr. and Mrs. A. Jukes, Mr. K. Dobell, Mr. and Mrs. C. Dowding, Mr. and Mrs. D. Black, Mr. D. Howie, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Rie and Mr. and Mrs. B. Howie with Patricia, all of Vancouver; Mrs. J. Howard and sons, Peter and Skipper, Calgary; Mrs. R. Dawe-Trenton, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Taylor with Heather, David and Robert, Saskatchewan; and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Robinson and son, Jay, Portland, Ore.

In Bouquet

Erica Cresner Pusnik, daughter of Mrs. Frankska Pusnik, 1172 View Street, became the bride of Mr. Frank Wesley Olfert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Olfert, Oliver, B.C., at Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church. Pastor W. W. Rogers of Rest Haven Church, performed the summer evening ceremony.

Mrs. A. V. Piper sang the Wedding Prayer.

A white satin sheath style gown, with full train, was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The fitted bodice featured a boat neckline and lily point sleeves. Her waist-length, three-tiered veil cascaded from a satin rose headpiece and she carried a heart-shaped bouquet of red roses.

Pastor Arthur M. Spens gave the bride in marriage.

Maid of honor Miss Marlene Olfert, groom's sister, and bridesmaid, Miss Sonia Maglio, were in gold satin short gowns. They wore single rose headpieces on tone and carried nosegays of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Roy Hingley of Victoria was best man. Ushering were Mr. Ron Olfert, groom's brother.

Following a reception at Union Centre on Quadra Street the newlyweds left for a motor trip through the U.S. to Cornerbrook, Nfld., where they will make their home.

For travelling the bride chose a white lace shift style dress and white accessories.

Buyers Applaud Enzo

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Suffragette hats, sports jackets for evening, Ginger Rogers dancing shoes and Edwardian gowns were all parts of the fall-winter style picture that emerged in high fashion previews here.

Enzo and Carda opened the second day of high fashion shows for international buyers and press in the Pitti Palace.

Enzo used tunics and jaunty jackets for a collection that drew warm applause from store buyers. Carda voted against the sportive look and went all out for pre-First World War fashion ideas translated for the 60s.

Milanesie designer Enzo carried out his tunic theme with nine-tenths coats, slightly shorter tunic coats and suits cut to look like tunics.

Sporty jackets over long, slim bare-backed black evening gowns were Enzo favorites for formal wear. One of the jackets came in sturdy grey tweed, dressed up for evening with a scattering of sparklers. Other double-breasted, refer-style jackets came in tangerine or orchid silk.

Enzo's tunic coat came in combinations like back broad-tail over a cowl-necked champagne wool dress or candy pink over a little charcoal grey sheath.

This designer agreed with the current Italian fondness for double-faced wool and reversibles. His black and tan reversible coat was nine-tenths length, belted and wrapped over to an asymmetrical closing.

He used charcoal and pin-striped beige for a reversible coat and tunic ensemble. The striped tunic had a cowl collar and was gently fitted.

A Chefis hat—done in fur or cire and worn on the back of the head—topped off the tunics.

Garden Notes

Corny, But That's Life

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

When corn produces a decorative tassel away up on top of the plant, it is in a very important stage of its development. I have known misinformed gardeners to cut off these tassels as fast as they appeared, to "throw all the strength into the cobs." Trouble is, they never got any cobs, or at least, there were no corn kernels in the cobs.

You see, those tassels are the male flowers of the corn plant, and without the dust-like pollen from these tassels, there can be no mouth-watering corn-on-the-cob.

Those sticky silken threads that protrude from the ears of corn are the female flowers. Each thread connects with an embryo kernel within the cob, and each thread or "silk" must be fertilized with a grain of pollen from the male tassel before its kernel will swell. Hence, the importance of both tassels and silks—male and female must get together before the corn plant can produce children, the offspring in this case being the seed kernels on the cobs.

We are coming up now to a critical time for corn as the tassels appear and ripen, for this is when pollination takes place. If it is incomplete or unsuccessful, the ears will fill out only partially or not at all.

Insects play no part in the pollination of corn—it is all done by gravity or by the wind.

This is why a single row of corn in the garden will often fail to produce plump ears. Persistent wind during the pollinating period will carry the pollen away from those waiting silks below, and these unfertilized threads wither and die without producing any kernels within the ears. Corn should always be grown in multiple rows or in square "blocks" so the pollen from one row, if blown away, will reach the silks of another row. Even with the correct placement, you will often find cobs on which the tips have no kernels, due to imperfect pollination.

Gardeners have been arguing for over a hundred years as to whether the suckers should be torn off from the base of the corn stalk, and even the highest authorities can't seem to make up their minds on this point. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says it doesn't make any difference; personally, I leave the suckers on. I can see how these suckers could rob the parent plant of nutrients if the corn was growing in poor, hungry ground, but no sane gardener would ever attempt this crop on an infertile plot.

Corn is a big, husky, hungry plant, and the richest soil in the garden is none too good for this demanding subject. And even in well-manured ground, the crop should be given feeds of chemical fertilizer through the growing season. Under this treatment, there should be food to spare for the suckers, and in any case, I believe the shock of removing them is harder on the parent plants than any harm they may do by remaining. Some years, when autumn remains warm and open, I have taken a second crop of smallish but welcome ears from the corn suckers.

At a certain stage of growth, cord-like roots will appear on the lower stem, several inches above ground level. These arch themselves outward and downward, and given half a chance, they will insert themselves into the ground.

I believe these aerial roots are for the purpose of providing better anchorage as the plants become top-heavy, acting as miniature stays or guys—why else would they emerge from the stem so far above the soil surface?

In any case, our job is to make it easy for them to perform their function, and to this end, I "earth up" my corn as soon as these buttress roots appear, pulling earth up around the stems with the draw hoe.

Shakespeare Didn't Say Nk Yew

English Massacre Language

LONDON—What language do the English speak, anyhow? Certainly not English. They get very angry if you suggest this. After all, it's their island and their language and they can do what they like with it, they say. Well, that's hard to dispute. But is it English?

I have been arguing with some of my English friends here, all of whom seemed to have gone to Oxford, that what they are speaking may very well be Queen Elizabeth II's English, but it certainly isn't Elizabeth I's English. I don't mean they don't write English; they write the stuff magnificently. They just don't talk it.

I have immense difficulties, for example, communicating with my charlady, an immensely respectable if somewhat timorous lady. A look of blank terror crosses her face every time I address her at all in my simple, vigorous tongue. Weather is never nice here; it's fine. But that's not the problem. The problem is simply that my charlady has never heard English spoken before. She's read it, of course, but English isn't spoken here. It's swallowed, brayed, chewed up, melted, or simply hummed—never spoken. It's pretty frightening, the first time you hear an English word.

One day she was shambling toward the door, having done her duty magnificently as always. "Thank you," I called out. Her eyeballs skittered around in terror. "Oh! don't do nothing," she wailed. "Truly Oh taint."

Poor thing had never heard "Thank you" before. Over here they say, "Nk yew." The upper classes have condensed and swallowed this even further. Come out: "Kew." When you come right down to it, "Thanks" with the "th"

By JOHN CROSBY

and "a" in there—is a pretty accusatory noise when you hear it for the first time. Not only has the sound of the word been lost to this insular tribe of English, but the meaning is long gone here. In England when a waiter puts a cup of coffee before you, he says, "Nkyew."

Now, what's he "nkyew" me for? I should be "nkyew" him. A friend of mine once bumped into a waiter and sent his whole tray of dishes crashing to the floor. "Nkyew," said the waiter.

Wrong word for the occasion. They don't know what the word means and they don't know what it sounds like. I mean, fellows, t-h-a is part of the written word, isn't it? It's in all the books. Why not use it. Elizabeth I certainly did. So did Shakespeare.

Elaine Dundy, in her book, The Old Man and Me, points out that the upper class English don't say "Oh!" They say, "Eu." It comes out in two syllables, "ee," in C-sharp. Can be a remarkably disapproving noise when properly sung.

But it's not "Oh." An O is an O. That's why they gave it that round look. Englishmen. "Eu" has a round look at all. It's a thin, disapproving line.

On the other O, the short one, the English assume an indisputable O look. Their mouths pucker into tiny holes—you have to be born here before you can make your mouth that small—and say it. "Lot" comes out "lote" rhyming with "float." Everytime I say "lot" or "Oxford," my English friends break up. I open my mouth and it comes out "Ox" as it's meant to.

The veddy veddy upper class close their mouths almost entirely, cram the words down their gullets, and try to swallow the vowels. It's difficult to speak a language without vowels, takes years.

I know an Oxford don who is a very great authority on wines and I had him over for dinner one night expecting to extract a little information about good vintage years, how to decant the stuff, and all that. So I asked him, "G'd t," he said, "T' pnt k'p 'n mnd 'svgr 'n drty 'fin."

That's the way it went, a kind of low musical humming sound, deep in his throat. I tried to look intelligent while this humming disquisition went on for roughly an hour.

I kept thinking what massive and wonderful secrets about viniculture, about great wines, about where to find the best wines this man had spent years in learning, was being lost, swallowed, locked up in that man's gullet.

Stamp's Heel Sympathetic Role

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

When Tennessee Stamp stars on Broadway in Alfie, his dark locks will be dyed blonde, as they were when he played the angelic Billy Budd. Alfie is a hellion in this one—a deep dyed-in-the-wool Cockney who gets every woman he meets—and ends up with nothing. Alfie is the kind of man you hate and yet feel sorry for. It's a great acting role.

Sophia Loren's picture in Israel Avivya, is delayed while the script gets a rewrite. She is currently resting in Rome. Her cameo in Operation Crossbow, will not be filmed in London until mid-November. By that time she will have finished Avivya, she hopes.

Victor Pahlen is the producer of Malta Convoy, for which they want Richard Burton and William Holden. Attractive young Canadian actor Lee Patterson and Hal Kaplan who directed Any Wednesday, are planning a TV special for Granada in England, on that strange city known as Las Vegas with its three main industries—gambling, marrying and divorcing. It would be interesting to find out how many Las Vegas marriages have lasted. I saw only one there—Rita Hayworth's at The Sands with Dick Haymes. All I remember is the clack clack of the cameramen and the distant sound of the dice, and little Yasmin tugging at Rita's arm and saying, "Mama, I want a wedding ring too." She is very pretty and will probably have her share.

A horde of Beetle brain trusters here are working on establishing identities for them in their next picture. They will still play, but the next movie will have a real story. A Hard Day's Night is just a sample of their lives.

It's strange that Rex Harrison will be playing Dr. Doolittle, the film to be made by Alan Lerner. The stories were written for children by Hugh Lofting a long time ago. Rex will be seen as a sort of male Mary Poppins.

David Niven refused to star in the Elaine Dundy story. The Old Man and Me, until the title was changed to The Young Lady and Me. I can see his point. People might think he is the old man. He is not as young as he was, but David has the same kind of perpetual charm that keeps Cary Grant perpetually young.

Actress Lord Sullivan met Israeli actress Dalilah Lavi on the set of John Sim in Mabelia. Now they are trying to get a divorce because he wants to marry Dalilah.

KILL DANDELIONS

Now is the time to ensure a beautiful lawn this year. Easy-to-use Later's Dandelion Weed Killer attacks dandelion and other broad leaf weeds right at the roots, gets rid of them once and for all. Later's is economical, too—1 1/2-2 tablespoons in a gallon of water covers 200 sq. ft. of lawn. If you want a green, weed-free lawn, specify Later's by name.

Election at End of Collision Course?

Tories, Grits Dug In on Flag Front

By KEN KELLY
OTTAWA (CP)—Are Liberals and Conservatives headed for a collision on the flag issue which only a general election can solve?

The answer seems to be yes in the light of statements from both groups that they are dug in unalterably in their respective stands on the issue.

The flag debate is scheduled by the government to resume

in the Commons soon, possibly next week.
Prime Minister Pearson said Friday the government will not budge on this intention.

"The flag is part of our seasonal program for the first part of the session and we want to finish it," he told a reporter.

The Conservatives want the debate postponed until after a summer recess. They have advised the government that debate on the flag will take many more weeks.

So far the government's proposed flag of three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each side has been debated on six days. There have been 16 Liberal speakers, 20 Conservative, three New Democrat, four Social Credit and three Creditist.

Unless one side gives way, debate could be prolonged indefinitely.

Or the government could dissolve Parliament for a fall election on the basis that Parliament refuses to enact into law the proposed flag.

Several Conservatives tried more than a week ago to convince the government and their colleagues to accept the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Canadian Red Ensign as the banner marking Canada's Commonwealth connection.

The government has proposed the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Union Jack as denoting Canada's Commonwealth association.

Jury's Verdict:

Hospital Staff Negligent

By MIKE GADSBY

A coroner's jury Friday found negligence "on the part of an employee or employees unknown of Gleggarry Private Hospital, contributing to the death of Mrs. Jessie Charlton Little."

The verdict came on the heels of a last-minute statement by George Gregory, counsel for Mrs. C. M. MacLeod, daughter of the deceased, that Mrs. MacLeod would be content if the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

EXPERT WITNESS
The inquest into Mrs. Little's death was convened under coroner Edmond J. de St. Jorre on a Supreme Court order after Mrs. Little, a patient at Gleggarry private hospital, died Feb. 28, a day after admission to St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured and dislocated left arm.

Last witness to be called in the four-day inquest was Dr. Michael Ross, who was called in as an expert witness.

HEARD EVIDENCE
David Hummel, counsel for Gleggarry hospital, asked Dr. Ross if he had heard Dr. J. W. E. Hunt's evidence that Mrs. Little had very limited movement of her arms and legs. (Dr. Hunt was Mrs. Little's physician).

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Would you agree that his evidence on her ability to cause this injury to herself was based on his knowledge of her movement capability.

Dr. Ross: Yes.

OPINION ON INJURY
Mr. Hummel: Did you hear other evidence that Mrs. Little could pull herself up, sit up and had considerable movement of her legs and arms?

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Assuming it was true, what opinion would you have that she could do this damage (the broken arm) to herself.

Dr. Ross: I think it would be possible.

QUITE USUAL
Dr. Ross went on to say that it would be quite usual for a doctor to put off seeing Mrs. Little when her condition was as described.

He also stated that the private hospital shouldn't have taken

Rochester

Rioters Out Of Hand

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—A race riot sparked by the arrest of a Negro at a street dance flared out of control early today in the heart of this upstate New York city. Police said at least 1,000 Negroes and whites were involved.

At least 500 policemen were rushed to the scene of the rioting but the melee became so intense they withdrew from the center of it and established a perimeter defense to contain it.

Police said the situation was "definitely out of control and critical."

A number of persons were injured, including some police.

RUSH TO AREA

The arrest of the Negro for disorderly conduct triggered a major clash between Negroes and police. Word of the incident caused a number of whites to rush into the area and join in the street fighting.

The riotous disorders spread over a 50-block area and at the height of it at least a half dozen police cars were overturned. The personal automobile of Police Chief William Lombard was rolled over and burned.

DOZEN AMBULANCES

At least a dozen ambulances were sent into the area where the violence erupted. A number of stores were wrecked and one witness said several liquor stores and pharmacies were "stripped to the walls."

A two-alarm fire was reported raging in the center of the Negro district where the rioting broke out. Police were not certain whether it was connected with the disorders.

NEGRO NEIGHBOR

Scene of the trouble was the Joseph Avenue area, a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

There are approximately 35,000 Negroes among the more than 318,000 residents of this northwestern New York city situated near Lake Ontario.

The rioting here followed by only one day five consecutive days of disorders in New York City.

Chief Justice Dies at 64 After Relapse

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Court of Appeal died Friday night at his home in Vancouver after a sudden relapse in a prolonged illness.

The death of the prominent jurist came almost a year to the day after an historic judgment that rocked the province. On July 29, 1963, Chief Justice Lett declared unconstitutional the B.C. government's expropriation of the B.C. Electric power, gas and transportation utility.

He would have celebrated his 69th birthday next Saturday.

FUNERAL DATE LATER

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Premier Bennett, who was on Salt Spring Island when informed of his death, said he was "shocked and saddened."

"This is very sad news," said Attorney-General Bonner. "I feel it very much personally."

SUFFER GREAT LOSS

"The people of this province and of Canada suffer a great loss at his death," Premier Bennett said. "In his remarkable career may be seen the

$30,000 Toronto Robbery

Police Post Reward For Bank Bandit As Pursuer Killed

TORONTO (CP)—Police Chief James Mackay authorized a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the person responsible for the shooting death of Jack Blanc, 56, of Toronto, during an armed robbery of a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in suburban Downsview Friday afternoon.

Police are still seeking the lone bandit who removed about $30,000 from the bank's vault and cash drawers.

Inspector William Perry said the suspect fled from the bank, pursued by an accountant carrying the bank's revolver. Mr. Blanc, standing outside the bank, took the revolver from the accountant and began chasing the bandit, he said.

HIT CRUISER

In the meantime, Inspector Perry said, a police car appeared on the scene driven by Const. Donald Jackson. The holdup man fired several shots at the police cruiser with what appeared to be a rifle.

Some of the shots shattered the windshield, spraying the officer about the eyes, face and neck with broken glass. Const. Jackson's condition was reported to be good.

CONTINUED CHASE

Inspector Perry said Mr. Blanc, a skindiving instructor for the Young Men's Hebrew Association, continued pursuing the bandit, until the robber wheeled and fired directly at him, killing him instantly.

The bandit then made his getaway in a stolen, cream-colored automobile that was found later a short distance from the scene.

MANAGER'S OFFICE

The gunman had entered the bank about 5 p.m., one hour before closing, walked past about 25 customers and directly into the manager's office. The manager was talking to a customer at the time.

The bandit fired two shots over the manager's head and

Johnson Answers de Gaulle

U.S. Won't 'Ratify Terror'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Friday clashed with French President de Gaulle, declaring the United States would not agree to any conference on Southeast Asia called "to ratify terror."

The president also took sharp issue with de Gaulle's statement, made in Paris Thursday, that the United States was trying to dominate Europe. (See Page 3.)

Johnson, at a news conference in the state department auditorium, aimed at de Gaulle at the outset with statements about U.S. policy toward Southeast Asia and Europe.

The United States also has

Johnson

rejected de Gaulle's plan when he has proposed it in the past. Johnson declared that it is true there is danger and provocation from North Viet Nam.

"and such provocation could force a response, but it is also true that the United States seeks no wider war."

"Other friends," he went on, "suggest that this problem must be moved to a conference table and, indeed, if others would keep the solemn agreements already signed at a conference table, there would be no problem in South Viet Nam."

This was a reference to the various Geneva agreements which set up the partition of Viet Nam, after the Indochinese war which ended in 1954, and established the neutrality and independence of Laos.

The president added: "We do not believe in a conference called to ratify terror, so our policy is unchanged. For 10 years, and in three different administrations, the United States has been committed to the freedom and independence of South Viet Nam, helping others to help themselves."

"In those 10 years we have taken whatever actions were necessary. We shall stick to that policy."

New Series to Explore LBJ's Personality

A distinguished Washington correspondent who has known Lyndon Johnson well for 20 years gives the intimate story of the U.S. president in a series of Colsonist articles starting Sunday.

William S. White, Pulitzer Prize winner and widely syndicated columnist, tells of the many facets of Johnson's personality, and of his political shrewdness, in The Professional, a 10-part book condensation.

Avoid Race Tensions —Johnson, Goldwater

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater conferred alone for 16 minutes Friday and agreed that "racial tensions should be avoided" in the campaign ahead. However, before the meeting, Johnson said he had no plans to make a pact to avoid civil rights as an issue.

Island Fishing Trip

Bob Takes Coho 'Sweden' Is Next

Comedian Bob Hope has left his scriptwriters behind in Hollywood—and is out fishing off Stuart Island, 30 miles north of Campbell River.

But he hasn't left his sense of humor behind. "My scriptwriters need the rest too," he said in a radio-telephone call to the Colonist last night. "Who needs 'em to go fishing, anyway?"

been fishing around Qualicum and Campbell River.

His biggest catch so far? "We caught a 26-pound fish here off the island," he said.

For this trip, Bob has left his family at home.

"It was too short a trip to bring them, but we'll probably all be coming up here again once I've finished the picture."

Chief Justice Dies at 64

last 12 years when Sherwood Lett was university chancellor at UBC and more latterly chief justice in our courts.

Both my wife and I are well acquainted with the family and we extend our deepest sympathy at this time.

"His career was a model which young people in this province should study and on which they could well pattern their own lives. His death will leave a sad gap among the province's leaders for many years to come."

Chief Justice Lett suffered a heart attack last February at the opening of the legislature and has never been well enough since to return to the bench.

He was decorated in two world wars and severely wounded at Dieppe in 1942. A Rhodes scholar, he became chancellor of UBC in 1951 and held the position for six years. In 1954 he was appointed chief of the Canadian delegation on the International Supervisory Commission of the cease-fire in Indo-China.

He was named chief justice of the B.C. Supreme court in 1955 and moved in June, 1963, to the head of the appeal court with the title of chief justice of B.C.

BORN IN ONTARIO

Born in Ingersoll, Ont., Chief Justice Lett left McGill University to enlist with the Irish Fusiliers of Canada at the outbreak of the First World War and went overseas in 1915.

In France from 1916 to 1919, he won the Military Cross at Amiens in 1918 and completed an arts degree from UBC while he was overseas, graduating in the university's first class in 1916.

LAWYER IN 1922

After his scholarship to Oxford he was called to the bar of B.C. in 1922 and joined a Vancouver law firm in 1925.

In 1940 he went overseas and as a brigadier led the 4th Infantry Brigade in the Dieppe raid of 1942. He was awarded the DSO. Following convalescence and a period as deputy chief of staff at Ottawa he returned to Europe and was wounded again at Caen in July 1944 and mentioned in dispatches in 1945.

Chief Justice Lett is survived by his widow Evelyn and two daughters.

Island Accountants Pass Examinations

Twenty-six island students obtained standing in a recent economics examination of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.

Highest marks in the province in the examination were obtained by Patrick Alan Aldous, 4590 Summer Place. He is son of B.C. Ferry Authority general manager, Monty Aldous, and is a student with the firm of I-may, Boiston, Dunn and Co. of Victoria.

Of the 132 successful candidates who obtained standing in the examination, the following are from Victoria:

Allan G. Fitzgerald, Dave Flaig, Roderick N. Genter, R. J. Hale, Richard Lewis, Warren Lowe, John H. Mace, Alfred F. May, David L. Peters, Richard

M. Scherr, W. M. Trenholme, John C. Worthing.

'Goof Balls' Indicate Problem But It's Not Ice-Chomping

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My step-daughter introduced her mother to amphetamine-based "goof balls." From a nice person, my wife has become an irritable whining nag. The supply is from under the counter, not medically supervised.

She suffers severe headaches and has at all times a traveling pain from hair to toes. These things hurt her, not me, but now she has acquired the habit of chomping crushed ice, from early to late. This will take me to the looney bin with her.

Is this insane desire to chomp ice a side effect of goof balls?—MR. X.X.X.

You have a problem. Your wife has one. Your stepdaughter does, too.

There's nothing about the amphetamine drugs (goof balls) that intrinsically leads to ice-chomping. I've had quite a few inquiries from people who got into the habit of chewing ice cubes or chips, and there's nothing basically harmful about it.

There's nothing necessarily wrong, either, with saying "hrr-rumph," or scratching your ear, or indulging any other odd nervous habits.

But in your case, I would find out why your wife adopted the amphetamine habit, and how your daughter happened to know so much about goof balls. There's some sort of emotional problem involved here.

The amphetamine drugs, so casually overused by too many people, cause irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness. The chewing of crushed ice, from early to late, this will take me to the looney bin with her.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a woman of 69 hope to recover from osteoporosis of the lower spine? I'm in much pain —F.B.S.

Complete recovery cannot be promised, but relief from pain is possible. Osteoporosis is a weakening of the bones from loss of calcium.

Physical activity is necessary. With it, there is no way a doctor can retard or reverse this loss of calcium. Bones need exercise to stay strong. Hormones are usually given to help the deficiency. They also help maintain bone strength. Another essential is a diet high in protein, calcium and Vitamin C.

CHECK DOCTOR

But consult your physician and tell him exactly what you have written to me.

The problem here, isn't chomping ice. It is why your wife (and her daughter) started taking goof balls. You have in your family a couple of females who are in trouble, and maybe you can open some doors and let some profes-

'Establishment' Original Cast To Play Here

The Establishment, Britain's famed satirists, will start a Canadian tour in Victoria Sept. 21, at the Royal Theatre.

The Establishment, which has appeared on CBC's Quest and the Ed Sullivan Show, started at a night club of that name in London and won renown by aiming its barbs at the ruling order in Britain.

Nothing is safe—the church, royalty, international affairs and politics.

Heading the cast are John Bird, Jeremy Gidd and Carol

Simpson. Producer is Peter Cook, who owns the London club with Nicholas Luard.

The group is the first original cast group from London to visit Canada. Other shows send out road companies.

Last year the group played in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, where Mayor Charlotte Whitton threatened to chase them out of town.

After the Victoria appearance they go to Vancouver and then 12 other Canadian cities before returning home.

shouted: "I want all the money you have in the bank."

The bandit then walked into the main lobby of the bank, jumped up on a counter and started waving his gun at the customers and the bank staff of 10.

He leaped down behind the counter and scooped up money from cash drawers, stuffing it into two broadcloth bags. Then he walked from the building, followed by the manager and Mr. Blanc.

FIRE AT PURSUERS

After shooting at Mr. Blanc, the gunman picked up his bags and continued walking down the street. In the space of about 200 feet, he turned and fired five or six times at persons following him, missing them all.

The shot fired at the bandit by Mr. Blanc apparently missed by about one foot.

John Kee, a teller at the bank, said the bandit handed the bags to an accountant and told him to fill them with money. He also ordered the manager to open the vault, Mr. Kee said.

"I'm tired of getting just what's in the till," Mr. Kee quoted the gunman as saying. As the bandit left the bank, Mr. Blanc, who was accompanied by his wife, turned to the accountant as he was getting the bank's revolver out and said: "Give that gun to me, I'm a crack shot."

the patient to a regular hospital without a doctor's permission unless there was an obvious dire emergency.

Under questioning by Mr. Hummel, Dr. Ross said that Mrs. Little could have suffered a broken arm without feeling any pain. He said that although such a situation would be unusual it would not be unique.

Mr. Hummel: Have you heard evidence that indicates to you that any member of the hospital staff did anything wrong?

Dr. Ross: No, I haven't.

In cross-examination, Mr. Gregory suggested that Mrs. Little, who was not able to communicate with those around her, was suffering pain which was not diagnosed.

Dr. Ross answered that in the lack of any symptoms or evidence of pain, it was apparent that she had not been suffering. The six-man jury deliberated about 40 minutes before bringing in its verdict.

Collision Course

baker put the seal on the party's stand in a Wednesday television speech.

"To put it frankly, the stand of the government is that Parliament must either do what the government wants it to do or an election will be called. . . .

"I think today Canadians as a whole, in the interests of unity and amity, would be prepared to compromise to bring about a flag based on the ensign as it is, with the fleur-de-lis or whatever French-Canada would like to have to show the historical past and the contribution of the French to Canada on the fly."

Neither Liberals nor Conservatives are said to be unanimously in favor of the positions of their party. But they seem able to do little except try to persuade each other to modify their positions and hope the flag debate will run out of speakers.

Members in both parties say they are prepared to fight regardless of whether an election — as a final solution — is involved.

"I wouldn't like to think what would happen," says Mr. Pearson on the question of the Conservatives being unilaterally determined not to give way.

Would the government agree to suspend the flag debate until after a recess under certain conditions?

Conquerors Of Everest Try Rainier

LONGMIRE (AP) — Tenzing and three of the five Americans who reached the summit of Mt. Everest began the 14,410-foot ascent of Mt. Rainier Thursday.

Tenzing of India and Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand were the first men to scale Everest, the world's highest mountain.

Making the climb with Tenzing are Jim Whittaker of Redmond, first American to scale Everest, and two of his companions in that expedition, Luther Jerstad of Gig Harbor, and Dr. Tom Hornbein of the University of Washington.

Tenzing's wife, Dakhu, 28, accompanied the party on the first leg of the climb.

Riotous Activities Slated At Nanaimo Prairie Days

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Jaycees, said last night they have a number of "riotous" activities lined up for Prairie and other people coming to the city for the Prairie Days event this weekend.

Mayor Maffeo and a number of Nanaimo businessmen will serve a free breakfast on the Simpsons-Sears-Safeway parking lot from 9 to 11 a.m. today with all food courtesy of Safeway and Vancouver Island Gas.

TOPELESS CONTEST

From 10 to 11, Mayor Maffeo, Mrs. Mega McDougall, Mrs. Lena Martin, Dr. Tom Cogrove and Jack Miller will judge the topless bathing suit contest at the same place.

"This is not a skylark; this is the real thing," said a Jaycee official. "The contestants will definitely be girls."

CHILDREN'S PARADE

A giant children's parade kicks off from the parking lot at 11 a.m., going through town and winding up in the civic arena parking lot. There will be 125 cash prizes for costumes, and free ice cream and free tickets to Newcastle Island for all youngsters entered.

All morning the Jaycees will be riding around town in the CHUB mobile unit interviewing tourists for the Tourist-of-the-Day contest.

The winner will be announced about noon, then treated to some real Nanaimo hospitality for the rest of the day.

BUSY SCHEDULE

The tourist couple will stay at the Beverly Motel Saturday night and the Castaway Motel Sunday night. They will eat at the Tally Ho, the Shoreline Hotel and the Rendezvous Cafe and have cocktails at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ney before taking a tour of the harbor in the Neys' yacht.

Saturday night they will attend the Prairie Peoples' dance on Newcastle Island with Mr. and Mrs. Geoff Matthews, and Sunday afternoon they will be taken on a plane ride over the area.

The Lions club and Mount Benson Legion branch have lined up horseshoe tournaments, salmon barbecues and children's games on Newcastle Island both days.

Heading Home?

Police May Call Off Search for Man, 81

An elderly man who was the object of a search in the Sooke area may be attempting to return to his former home in Campbell River.

Sooke RCMP voiced this possibility after a party of 20 Sooke residents and police searched the bush along roads in Sooke area without results.

The Sooke detachment Friday evening notified Campbell River RCMP to investigate in hope the missing man may be found up-Island.

Missing is Waldo Adamson, 81, who had been living with relatives in Sooke since April. He left his home near the Sooke RCMP detachment office at 12:30 p.m. Thursday to go for a walk.

A tracking dog was called in Thursday evening after Mr. Adamson was missed. The dog tried Thursday night and again Friday morning but was unable to pick up a trail.

About 20 Sooke residents took part in the search and checked the bush along all the roads Mr. Adamson was known to use when he took walks.

Police said Friday night they doubted whether the search would be resumed today unless more leads came to light.

Mr. Adamson was living with his stepson and grandchildren.

Port Alberni Verdict

Speed, Alcohol Ruled Traffic Death Factors

By MIKE GADSBY

Speed and alcohol were cited by a coroner's jury here Friday as the contributing factors in the death of Larry Wayne Milligan following a traffic accident in Port Alberni July 18.

Milligan, 18, died at Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria July 19, after being brought here for further treatment the day after the accident.

Const. Milan Slavik of the Port Alberni RCMP said he considered Bruce Verne Jordan, driver of the car in which Milligan was riding when it struck a parked car, was impaired when he saw him following the accident.

He said Jordan's speech was slurred, his eyes were glassy, he was a bit unsteady on his feet and he smelled strongly of alcohol.

He said a blood sample taken from Jordan's arm about 45 minutes after the accident showed a blood-alcohol count of .11 per cent. This was below the level of impairment accepted in Port Alberni courts, he added.

Const. Slavik said Jordan admitted driving at 40 to 45 miles an hour just before the accident.

Pulled Out to Pass

He said Jordan had told him he pulled out to pass a car shortly before the accident, then turned too far back into his own lane, went onto the gravel shoulder, started to skid and lost control before striking the parked car.

Const. Slavik said he found beer in the trunk of the car, and some broken bottles outside the car on the shoulder of the road. There was also one full bottle on the shoulder.

He said Jordan admitted drinking two bottles of beer at about 11:30 p.m., and another bottle at about 12:30 or 1 a.m.

He said he thought if the seat belts in the car had been used there would have been no injuries in the accident.

Evidence showed there was a ridge that varied in height between two and three inches which formed a drop between the road and the gravel shoulder.

Loran Jordan, father of the driver of the death car, said the drop, especially in the area where the car probably left the paved portion of the road, was sufficient to cause the car to skid.

"There would be a tendency for it to throw the back part of the vehicle, especially in a small car, and help to cause a skid," said Mr. Jordan, former mayor of Port Alberni.

Did Not Feel Impaired

Bruce Jordan told the jury he did not feel he was impaired at the time of the accident. He said he could not remember exactly where his car left the road.

He said he did not remember what kind of car he had passed or who was driving it.

Donald Johnston, owner of the parked car, said his car had moved forward about four feet under the impact from the Jordan car.

A Royal Jubilee Hospital pathologist, Dr. Ross McNeely, who performed the autopsy, said Milligan died of severe brain damage resulting from a double fracture of the skull.

No surgery could have saved the 18-year-old youth because of the extent of the brain damage, Dr. McNeely said.

In bringing in its verdict the jury found that "the driver was driving in a dangerous manner by speeding, and by the evidence produced before us it would indicate beer was a contributing factor in that he had consumed beer before the accident."

The jury deliberated about 20 minutes before bringing in its verdict to coroner Edmond J. de St. Jorre.

RCMP said no charge has been laid in connection with the accident.

Funeral services for young Milligan will be held today in St. Andrew's United Church in Alberni, beginning at 1 p.m.

Fisherman Pulls Wife to Safety After Boat Blast

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—A middle-aged Vancouver Island fisherman pulled his wife from the fire-swept waters of the harbor here Friday after a heavy blast sank their 45-foot trawler.

Ralph Branch of Coombs, his wife Bessie and repairman Mac McClellan all suffered second-degree burns in the explosion and a resulting fire. Mrs. Branch also had head and leg injuries.

BIG EXPLOSION

They were taken to West Coast General Hospital here. Residents of this city felt the explosion as far away as five miles.

HAD TAKEN ON FUEL

Police said the trawler Jalasu had taken on 500 gallons of diesel fuel and McClellan was working on the vessel's radio when the blast occurred.

John Northcoate, an employee of B.C. Packers, was nearby at the time.

"The ship was taking on fuel and was almost completed when it seemed to crack in half after a terrific explosion. Then it caught fire. I saw Bessie blown from the ship. Her husband dived overboard and dragged her to a nearby float where we tried to get a lifejacket on her."

AID ARRIVES

"By that time, firemen and ambulance crew were there and assisted us."

Mrs. Branch was carried unconscious to the ambulance. Her husband was assisted to a police car. McClellan walked to the car unaided.

The Jalasu sank after the blast, but its load of diesel oil spread across the harbor. Firemen were pouring water on the blaze hours later.

Weapon Traced

Appeal Brings No Clues About Murders

NANAIMO—The latest police appeal to the public for information about a 1962 double murder has brought no results so far, police indicated last night.

The appeal was issued Thursday as police disclosed they had traced the original owner of the rifle used to kill John Dixon and Dianne Phipps at Piper's Lagoon.

ORIGINAL OWNER

He was Robert Ralph Dillaugh, a former CNR station agent and telegrapher at Savona, B.C., who died in 1954.

The rifle was sold at a 1955 auction by auctioneer George Shelton, who has since died.

Police say any information on this gun will be received in strictest confidence. There is a $5,000 reward, put up by Nanaimo citizens and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

Police feel the killer was a local man or one familiar with the area. They have his description and a description of his car and are said to feel they have confronted him in one of the 150 written statements they have taken.

Riding Club Planning Rodeo for Labor Day

COMOX—A Labor Day rodeo with chuckwagon races, chariot races and other cowboy events will be staged by the Comox Valley Riding Club, says club rodeo chairman Bud Colbow.

The club also will sponsor a junior horse show as part of Comox Day celebrations Aug. 22, will take part in the parade and will form a tug-o-war team in an effort to retain its 1963 championship.

Hazard Rising

Sunny Days Threat To B.C. Forests

Rising temperatures over the next few days are expected to increase the fire hazard sharply, ending a long spell of poor weather that has been the death of foresters.

The latest report of the B.C. Forest Services reports that by Friday 51 fires were burning in the province, none considered dangerous. The total number of new fires reported in the past week is 42.

Rising temperatures are forecast for the southern section of B.C. in the next few days and firefighters are preparing to meet a sharp increase in new outbreaks. The northern half of the province is expected to remain cloudy and cool.

Total estimated cost of fighting forest fires last week was $3,900, and costs for the season are $77,000 compared with the $232,000 at this time last year.

This Weekend

Firemen, Water Skiers Meet in Duncan Area

DUNCAN—Water skiers from B.C. and the U.S. Pacific Northwest and volunteer firemen from all over Vancouver Island are holding major meetings in this area this weekend.

The Victoria Aqua Ski Club and the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League will stage the annual western Canadian open water skiing championships at Shawnigan Lake today and Sunday.

TWO-DAY CONVENTION

The firemen will hold a semi-annual convention in the North Cowichan firehall, also today and tomorrow.

About 100 competitors are expected in the lake event, which begins at 8 p.m. today. Slalom, jumping and trick contests will be held for men, women, juniors and veterans.

Participants will include Washington State water skiing champion Dick Dawson of Seattle, international barefoot skiing champ Eugene Skoglund of Lake Stevens, Wash., 65-year-old Hank Fletcher of Lake Stevens, Victoria's Cliff Johnson and Roy Carson of Lake Cowichan, who has an artificial right leg.

KITE FLYING

A special attraction will be provided by Rudolph Tushek of Vancouver, who will demonstrate kite flying on water skis. He has been known to soar up to 100 feet in the air beneath his $350 silk kite.

A good view of the two-day meet, whose proceeds go in part to the Solarium, is to be had from the Mountain View resort.

AWARD BANQUET

Several competitions are planned when about 200 firemen hold their convention, which ends Sunday evening with the annual award banquet in the curling rink.

North Cowichan chief Pat Clackson and his brigade are doing the organization. He is the firemen's association secretary-treasurer and other officers are president Tom Forrester of Harewood and vice-president George Sanderson of Duncan.

Boys Improving Picnic Site

Inmates of Brannan Lake boys' school are building rustic bridge as part of new picnic site atop Mount Benson near Nanaimo, a project started five years ago by group of prominent Nanaimo citizens and now nearing completion under Chamber of Commerce direction. Picnic site below old ski lodge, on land donated by Mac-Powell firm, should be ready in two weeks.—(Les Englefield)

Inlet Project Land Obtained

NANAIMO—The acquisition of private property in the area of the Commercial Inlet, Gordon Street development has been completed, officials said Friday.

It was also disclosed the city is still going through channels to acquire title to the navigable waters involved, and has received the permit for construction from the federal public works department.

The engineering firm of Willis, Cunliffe and Tait has started to survey the area and arrange technical details in preparation for the start of construction under the winter works program, which itself starts Oct. 15.

Primary aim of the $360,000 development, recently approved by voters, is 190 parking spaces to ease downtown congestion.

Heirloom Ring Worn by Bride

Afternoon sunshine enhanced the beauty of the pioneer Anglican Church, Saint Mary the Virgin, at Metchesin for the recent marriage of Violet May Wickham and Mr. Clive William Duggan.

Rev. Canon H. M. Bolton officiated at the quiet family wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Eric Wickham, Bamfield, B.C., and the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Duggan, Pickford Road, Colwood, and formerly of Metchesin.

Given in marriage by her father, the fair-haired bride was lovely in a fitted gown of peau de soie, made by herself, and featuring a bouffant over-skirt and chantilly lace jacket. A sparkling coronet held her three-tier veil of illusion net and her only jewelry was a pair of diamond earrings, gift of the groom. She carried a cascade of red roses and white stephanotis and "something old" was the bride's engagement ring set with a diamond which has been in the groom's family for six generations.

Miss Nora Wickham was bridesmaid for her sister. She chose a gown of daffodil yellow nylon and wore a band of fresh summer flowers in her hair. Gold and violet flowers were in her colonial bouquet. Mr. Terry Wilk was best man.

During signing of the register, Mrs. Ralph Willing

played several selections of wedding music.

Mr. Hugh Watson proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed in the parish hall. A gold and white, three-tiered cake, topped by traditional two doves, centred the bride's table.

For her going-away costume the bride chose a soft wool suit in off-white, with coral accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Duggan are now making their home on Maple Avenue, Sooke.

Among the out-of-town relatives attending were Major and Mrs. L. P. McGuire, Fort Ord, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Wickham, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Sandberg, 100 Mile House, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Mitchell, North Surrey, B.C.; Mr. E. Wickham, Jr.; Bamfield; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Potts, all of Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. Clive C. Justice, Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hof, of Cobble Hill, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Columba Maria, to Mr. John Almer Beddis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Almer Beddis of Coquitlam, and formerly of Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, August 8 at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Cathedral with Father Maurice Costelloe officiating.—(Campbell Studio)

Homer Big Hit

The homer in fashion for fall has nothing to do with the Greek epic poet or a home run in baseball. It is, instead, a comfortable garment in which to do homework.

Homers are expected to be great hits in dormitories and sororities of college campuses. There is great variety in style.

Some homers are jump suits, some pajamas, others are robes both short and long, while still others are "eaself" dresses or pleasant pinafores. It seems that just about any comfortable outfit which might be conducive to study will be called a homer this autumn and winter.

'At Home' Honors Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Attwell, 12 Oswego Street, who were married in Victoria in 1914, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday, July 29. In honor of the occasion they will be feted at an "at home" to be held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Justice, 348 Swan Street, Saanich, this afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Attending the celebration will be their sons, Mr. Harold Attwell of Victoria and Mr. Reg Attwell, Nanaimo, another daughter, Miss Gwen Attwell, Tranquille, B.C., and 10 of their 12 grandchildren.

HALIFAX (CP)—Mrs. John Doyle, 73, has retired from a factory here after 50 years of candy making. She says candy making is relatively easy to day with machines doing all the work, but when she started everything was done by hand.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from the woman who signed her letter "Exaggerated Grief?" She was criticizing a friend who fell apart at the funeral service of her husband. The writer hinted that the widow might be a candidate for an Academy Award, since her husband had been ill for a long time and his death came as no surprise.

Your answer seemed to support the mourner. You said, "The death of a loved one—expected or not—can be a traumatic experience." Candidly, Ann, I was surprised at the answer.

Highly civilized, cultured, well-educated individuals are in control of themselves at all times. The more primitive the people, the noisier the funeral. I believe in the therapeutic value of tears. But the shedding of tears should be private. Public exhibition of grief is a sign of ignorance and weakness.—FROM IOWA

Dear Iowa: How wonderful if all of us could be in perfect control of our emotions at all times. Humans—since we are human—cannot always achieve this level of perfection. Even machines have been known to break down occasionally.

The notion that only the weak and ignorant shed tears in public indicates such a lack of compassion that I would not dignify the observation by commenting further.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are against mixed marriages. I wish you would also come out against marriage between people of different political parties. I think it would help reduce the staggering divorce rate in this country.

I married a Republican. He tells me I would vote for a ring-tailed monkey if he ran on the Democratic ticket. My husband insists that although he is a registered Republican he votes for the man and not the party.

Something is wrong with this approach to politics but I can't put it into words. Can you?—POLLS-APART

Dear Polls: Many strong party members believe if the party is to be preserved they must support the party, no matter who the candidate. This old-fashioned, machine-type approach is losing out, and it's a good thing.

The voter who refuses to support his party's poor candidate is a healthy influence on BOTH parties.

The notion that any second-rater can be crammed down the voter's throat as long as he is on the "right" ticket should be knocked in the head.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother-in-law minds her own business, my kids don't give me any lip and the neighbors keep their dog off our property. So what am I writing about? My problem deals with business ethics and I need advice.

In our state a law prohibits the sale of cigarettes to anyone under 18. We own a small neighborhood store. Occasionally kids come in with notes from their mothers asking us to sell them cigarettes. I tell them I'm sorry but I can't do it.

This makes the mothers mad and I have lost some good customers because of it. They then send the children to the chain store on the corner where they can get what they want.

My wife says I should stop being a simpleton. What do you say?—ARGUE ARGUE ARGUE

Dear Argue: It's unfair of people to ask you to break the law and then take their legal traps elsewhere because you refuse.

The next time a mother sends her child in for cigarettes, phone her and read her this column. Maybe she'll be mad at both of us, but it's worth the try.

Heroic Mother Dies in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI)—Mrs. Tillie Majczek, 72, who scrubbed floors for 11 years to free her son from a 99-year term in prison, is dead.

The little, wiry scrub woman was the heroine of the movie Call Northside 777, which told of her fight to free her son Joe from Illinois' Stateville penitentiary. She saved her scrubwoman's pay and mortgaged her home to get money to reopen Majczek's defence against a charge that he killed a Chicago policeman in 1932.

Majczek, now a 55-year-old insurance agent, wept as he telephoned the news of his mother's death to reporter Jack McPhaul, one of the newspapermen instrumental in helping Mrs. Majczek win her son's freedom.

CLASSIFIED AD
On Oct. 1, 1944, Mrs. Majczek placed a classified ad in the Chicago Times which read: $5,000 reward for killers of Officer Lundy on Dec. 9, 1932. Call GRO 1758, 12-4 p.m. (There is no Northside 777).

The ad caught the eye of reporter Terry Colangelo, who showed it to city editor Karl Walsh. After Mrs. Majczek told her story, the newspaper joined her fight.

As reporters went back over the evidence they found the state's case against Majczek was based on falsified police records.

CHIEF WITNESS
They also decided the state's chief witness, Mrs. Vera Walush, had falsely identified Majczek as the killer.

One of the state's witnesses, John Zagata, said Mrs. Walush could not possibly have seen the killer because "there was not enough light in that back room to recognize anybody" and she had ducked into a closet as the killer entered the room.

FARDON SIGNED
It took a year for reporters McPhaul and the late James McGinnis to collect the evidence proving Majczek's innocence. On Aug. 15, 1945, then Gov. Dwight Green signed a pardon.

Two years later, the state tried to make amends for his 13 years in prison by paying him $24,000 damages. Majczek gave the money to his mother.

Ratepayers Meet Next Month

COBBLE HILL—The Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association will hold a public outdoor meeting in Parksville next month on a date still to be set, past president George Bonner has announced.

Mr. Bonner said two major items on the agenda will be property assessments and bus line subsidies.

He explained the first: "Before any school referendum is passed, the government must reduce the assessment on property."

NOT JUST THOSE
"Otherwise the association will advise the taxpayers to vote no."

Mr. Bonner said of the subsidy issue the association feels all bus lines should receive government subsidies, not just those in Victoria and Vancouver, so transportation companies do not have to cut their services.

Any taxpayer on Vancouver Island is welcome to attend the meeting, he said.

Applications Total 36 For Village Position

QUALICUM BEACH—Thirty-six applications for the position of village clerk have been received by the village council. Clerk Stanley Edgar is leaving at the end of the month for a post at Chilliwack, and council is expected to decide shortly on a successor.

PORT ALBERNI—Robert Louis Kapchinsky of Port Alberni has elected trial by judge and jury on a charge of causing bodily harm by criminal negligence by firing a pistol. He was charged after Sproule Lake resident William Olebar was hit three times in the groin and once in the left arm June 25, and has been fined $50 in magistrate's court after pleading guilty to possession of a firearm other than in his home.

PARKSVILLE—Something new in Parksville today will be a Saturday morning breakfast which will be put on by a group of local merchants in the Reynolds Street area. Breakfast will be served, rain or shine, on Reynolds Street from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and will consist of pancakes, bacon, sausages and coffee. There will be no charge.

NANAIMO—An unidentified teenage girl who saved Michael McCumber, six months, from drowning Wednesday near the Anchorage Marina is sought by the boy's mother, Mrs. Waneta McCumber, 1360 Discovery, wants to say thanks.

PORT ALBERNI—A second coaching clinic will be held by the Alberni Tennis Club today and Sunday, with Gordon Hartley of Victoria in charge. Junior sessions will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to noon Sunday, senior sessions from 2 to 4:30 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

CHEMUNUS—Funeral services will be held from Chemunus United Church at 2 p.m. today for John Russell McKinnon, 65, who died Wednesday at his home, 9876 Cedar Street. A resident of Chemunus for the past 60 years, he had been a master mechanic for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. for 15 years.

Trailer Club Planning Third Outing

A full program of activities for children and adults has been arranged for Victoria branch of the Dogwood Trailer Club's third outing this season, July 31 to Aug. 2.

Rallying spot is the Riverbend Trailer Court, 100 yards on the Victoria side of the bridge at Parksville.

Anyone who owns a trailer, camper or tent trailer, whether a member or not, can attend. The fee is $2 a night per trailer, which includes use of all facilities plus a pancake, syrup and sausage breakfast.

Major purchases of wool by Britain and Japan have pushed Australian export figures to record level this year.

station CKAY, says president William Jeffcott. Mr. McIntyre has worked with such stations as CHUB, CJAV, CKDA and CKWX.

ALBERNI—The Alberni Valley Riding Club has decided to hold an Island Horsemen's Council point show here on the day after the fall fair show. The decision was made at a recent club meeting at which club official Jeff Andrews presented the perpetual trophy donated by Mrs. John Andrews for the sports horse rally earlier this year to Chuck Anderson and Alvin Irg.

ERRINGTON—Katie Milne of Errington, one of 14 B.C. 4-H youngsters chosen to attend the national conference in eastern Canada in November, will judge for 4-H clubs in Nanaimo and at Vancouver's PNE. Miss Milne, only first-year 4-H choice

Fund Boss Sought

COURTENAY—A campaign manager for the annual United Good Neighbor Fund in the Comox Valley is being sought by Fund chairman William Henderson.

The new man will succeed William Lamb, who resigned after a highly successful year to take up a fulltime job as editor of the Courtenay Free Press.

AFTER HOLIDAYS
Mr. Henderson said he will call a meeting to plan the annual fall campaign after members of the board of directors have had their holidays.

One goal is increased participation through payroll deduction, he said, and the district teachers' association has been asked to join the payroll deduction plan this fall.

The teachers have decided to delay a decision until a meeting in the fall because many teachers have left the district this year.

Election at End of Collision Course?

Tories, Grits Dug In on Flag Front

By KEN KELLY
OTTAWA (CP)—Are Liberals and Conservatives headed for a collision on the flag issue which only a general election can solve?

The answer seems to be yes in the light of statements from both groups that they are dug in unalterably in their respective stands on the issue.

***
The flag debate is scheduled by the government to resume

in the Commons soon, possibly next week.

Prime Minister Pearson said Friday the government will not budge on this intention.

***
"The flag is part of our sessional program for the first part of the session and we want to finish it," he told a reporter. The Conservatives want the debate postponed until after a summer recess. They have advised the government that debate on the flag will take many more weeks.

So far the government's proposed flag of three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each side has been debated on six days. There have been 16 Liberal speakers, 20 Conservative, three New Democrat, four Social Credit and three Creditiste. Unless one side gives way, debate could be prolonged indefinitely.

Or the government could dissolve Parliament for a fall election on the basis that Parliament refuses to enact into law the proposed flag.

Several Conservatives tried more than a week ago to convince the government and their colleagues to accept the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Canadian Red Ensign as the banner marking Canada's Commonwealth connection.

The government has proposed the maple leaf flag as the Canadian flag and the Union Jack as denoting Canada's Commonwealth association.

Verdict

Hospital Staff Blamed

By MIKE GADSBY
A coroner's jury Friday found negligence "on the part of an employee or employees unknown to Glen-garry Private Hospital, contributing to the death of Mrs. Jessie Charlton Little."

The verdict came on the heels of a last-minute statement by George Gregory, counsel for Mrs. C. M. MacLeod, daughter of the deceased, that Mrs. MacLeod would be content if the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The inquest into Mrs. Little's death was convened under coroner Edmond J. de St. Jorre on a Supreme Court order after Mrs. Little, a patient at Glen-garry private hospital, died Feb. 28, a day after admission to St. Joseph's Hospital with a fractured and dislocated left arm.

Last witness to be called in the four-day inquest was Dr. Michael Ross, who was called in as an expert witness.

HEARD EVIDENCE
David Hummel, counsel for Glen-garry hospital, asked Dr. Ross if he had heard Dr. J. W. E. Hunt's evidence that Mrs. Little had very limited movement of her arms and legs. (Dr. Hunt was Mrs. Little's physician.)

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Would you agree that his evidence on her ability to cause this injury to herself was based on his knowledge of her movement capability?

Dr. Ross: Yes.
OPINION ON INJURY
Mr. Hummel: Did you hear other evidence that Mrs. Little could pull herself up, sit up and had considerable movement of her legs and arms?

Dr. Ross: Yes.
Mr. Hummel: Assuming it was true, what opinion would you have that she could do this damage (the broken arm) to herself.

Dr. Ross: I think it would be possible.
QUITE USUAL
Dr. Ross went on to say that it would be quite usual for a doctor to put off seeing Mrs. Little when her condition was as described.

He also stated that the private hospital shouldn't have taken

Chief Justice Dies at 68 After Relapse

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett, of the B.C. Court of Appeal died Friday night at his home in Vancouver after a sudden relapse in a prolonged illness.

The death of the prominent jurist came almost a year to the day after an historic judgment that rocked the province. On July 29, 1963, Chief Justice Lett declared unconstitutional the B.C. government's expropriation of the B.C. Electric power, gas and transportation utility.

He would have celebrated his 69th birthday next Saturday.

FUNERAL DATE LATER
Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Premier Bennett, who was on Salt Spring Island when informed of his death, said he was "shocked and saddened."

"This is very sad news," said Attorney-General Bonner. "I feel it very much personally."

SUFFER GREAT LOSS
"The people of this province and of Canada suffer a great loss at his death," Premier Bennett said. "In his remarkable career may be seen the

$30,000 Toronto Robbery

Police Post Reward For Bank Bandit As Pursuer Killed

TORONTO (CP)—Police Chief James Mackay authorized a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the person responsible for the shooting death of Jack Blanc, 56, of Toronto, during an armed robbery of a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in suburban Downsview Friday afternoon.

Police are still seeking the lone bandit who removed about $30,000 from the bank's vault and cash drawers.

Inspector William Perry said the suspect fled from the bank, pursued by an accountant carrying the bank's revolver. Mr. Blanc, standing outside the bank, took the revolver from the accountant and began chasing the bandit, he said.

HIT CRUISER
In the meantime, Inspector Perry said, a police car appeared on the scene driven by Const. Donald Jackson. The holdup man fired several shots at the police cruiser with what appeared to be a rifle.

Some of the shots shattered the windshield, spraying the officer about the eyes, face and neck with broken glass. Const. Jackson's condition was reported to be good.

CONTINUED CHASE
Inspector Perry said Mr. Blanc, a skindiving instructor for the Young Men's Hebrew Association, continued pursuing the bandit, until the robber wheeled and fired directly at him, killing him instantly.

The bandit then made his getaway in a stolen, cream-colored automobile that was found later a short distance from the scene.

MANAGER'S OFFICE
The gunman had entered the bank about 5 p.m., one hour before closing, walked past about 25 customers and directly into the manager's office. The manager was talking to a customer at the time.

The bandit fired two shots over the manager's head and

Rochester

CITY ASKS HELP

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—City officials declared a state of emergency and asked for state assistance early today as racial rioting involving at least 1,000 persons inflamed a 50-block area of this upstate New York city.

Before dawn, city manager Porter Homer declared a state of emergency and called the office of Governor Rockefeller to request assistance from state police. A contingent of 100 troopers was standing by in the city.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—A race riot sparked by the arrest of a Negro at a street dance flared out of control early today in the heart of this upstate New York city. Police said at least 1,000 Negroes and whites were involved.

At least 500 policemen were rushed to the scene of the rioting but the melee became so intense they withdrew from the centre of it and established a perimeter defence to contain it.

Police said the situation was "definitely out of control and critical."

At least 50 persons were injured, including some police.

RUSH TO AREA
The arrest of the Negro for disorderly conduct triggered a major clash between Negroes and police. Word of the incident caused a number of whites to rush into the area and join in the street fighting.

The riotous disorders spread over a 50-block area and at the height of it at least a half dozen police cars were overturned. The personal automobile of Police Chief William Lombard was rolled over and burned.

DOZEN AMBULANCES
At least a dozen ambulances were sent into the area where the violence erupted. A number of stores were wrecked and one witness said several liquor stores and pharmacies were "stripped to the walls."

A two-alarm fire was reported raging in the centre of the Negro district where the rioting broke out. Police were not certain whether it was connected with the disorders. Scene of the trouble was the Joseph Avenue area, a predominantly Negro neighborhood. There are approximately 35,000 Negroes among the more than 318,000 residents of this northwestern New York city situated near Lake Ontario.

Capless Cabbie Jailed

OTTAWA (CP)—Paul Auger was sent to jail Friday because he wouldn't wear a cap. Auger, 23, is a cab driver. A city bylaw requires all drivers to wear caps on the job.

Last month he paid his third $6 fine for the offence and swore that he would go to jail next time before donning the cap in hot weather.

On Friday Magistrate L. A. Sherwood convicted him of a fourth offence and gave him the choice of a $12 fine or two days in jail.

Auger chose jail after failing in his main argument—that because he was six-foot-three, he couldn't comfortably wear a cap while driving and would have to find another job if forced to wear one.

Ottawa cab drivers have been campaigning against the bylaw.

Two Men Injured

KANSAS CITY (AP)—One man suffered a fractured skull and another was less seriously injured Friday when nine Negro teenagers invaded a city park where an integrated track meet was in progress.

Johnson Answers de Gaulle

U.S. Won't 'Ratify Terror'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Friday clashed with French President de Gaulle, declaring the United States would not agree to any conference on Southeast Asia called "to ratify terror."

The president also took sharp issue with de Gaulle's statement, made in Paris Thursday, that the United States was trying to dominate Europe. (See Page 3.)

Johnson, at a news conference in the state department auditorium, aimed at de Gaulle with statements about U.S. policy toward southeast Asia and Europe.

De Gaulle Thursday proposed that a conference be called to discuss the proposed neutrality of Viet Nam, Laos, and Cambodia (all part of the old French Indochina), and that the four major powers involved—America, Russia, Communist China and France—get out of the area.

The United States also has

rejected de Gaulle's plan when he has proposed it in the past. Johnson declared that it is true there is danger and provocation from North Viet Nam, "and such provocation could force a response, but it is also true that the United States seeks no wider war."

"Other friends," he went on, "suggest that this problem must be moved to a conference table and, indeed, if others would keep the solemn agreements already signed at a conference table, there would be no problem in South Viet Nam."

This was a reference to the various Geneva agreements which set up the partition of Viet Nam, after the Indochinese war which ended in 1954, and established the neutrality and independence of Laos.

The president added: "We do not believe in a conference called to ratify terror, so our policy is unchanged. For 10 years, and in three different administrations, the United States has been committed to the freedom and independence of South Viet Nam, helping others to help themselves."

"In those 10 years we have taken whatever actions were necessary. We shall stick to that policy."

New Series to Explore LBJ's Personality

A distinguished Washington correspondent who has known Lyndon Johnson well for 30 years gives the intimate story of the U.S. president in a series of Colonist articles starting Sunday.

William S. White, Pulitzer Prize winner and widely-syndicated columnist, tells of the many facets of Johnson's personality, and of his political shrewdness, in The Professional, a 10-part book condensation.

Avoid Race Tensions —Johnson, Goldwater

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater conferred alone for 16 minutes Friday and agreed that "racial tensions should be avoided" in the campaign ahead. However, before the meeting, Johnson said he had no plans to make a pact to avoid civil rights as an issue.

Bob Takes Fish 'Sweden' Is Next

Comedian Bob Hope has left been fishing around Qualicum and Campbell River.

"His biggest catch so far? — We caught a 26-pound fish here off the island," he said.

Bob hopes to come to Victoria Monday for a game of golf on the Oak Bay course before he returns home to start shooting a new movie, "I'll Take Sweden."

For this trip, Bob has left his family at home. "It was too short a trip to bring them, but we'll probably all be coming up here again once I've finished the picture."
